Comments for Public Posting: I'm a mother of two young children and an architect. With my designer husband, 4 of us makes a qualified Low Income Household in the city of Los Angeles. Thanks to the supplemental income from the Home Sharing through AirBnB, my family never missed monthly payments of mortgage, property tax, insurance, gas bill, electricity bill, credit card bills and on and on. My main focus in my life as of now is raising my children to be upright citizens who will contribute to the society. My family believes in fulfilling our responsibilities as members of community in Los Angeles. All these starts with funds and incomes. We wish to be contributing citizens. Please let us operate the home sharing business at our own house. I believe that your current ordinance and regulations are reasonable and working. The newly proposed ordinance seems to be coming from the lack of resources. If the city shuts down thousands of home sharing businesses due to the lack of resources, it'll be a big waste of tax and funds that the city could earn otherwise. Please consider to grow the city planning department or create a new office to enforce the current ordinance instead of banning many businesses based on the lack of resources. Thank you so much for your hard work and dedication for the greater good!
