Comments for Public Posting: Because expecting people to follow the laws of the road is too much to ask? Are you aware of how many illegal guns/drugs Glendale has kept off the street by actually pulling over people with blacked out windows, no plates, traffic violations? Why are you lowering the bar in certain areas instead of investing in those areas to ensure that there is appropriate vehicle education. Do you need to see the stats on hit and runs withing in Los Angeles? Do you need to see the stats on pedestrian deaths? I find it offensive that you assume people of color are NOT capable of following simple rules of the road. If they are pulled over for something silly, it is pretty simple....."Yes Sir, No Sir, Thank you Sir". and everyone goes home to their families
