Comments for Public Posting: I strongly support the #SkiptheStuff agenda item #7. Amidst a global pandemic when many of us cannot eat at restaurants and takeout has gone up, the amount of waste has increased exponentially and we need to do our part to curb that. It's a win win - restaurants save money and we all mitigate our waste where possible. And, much of our takeout is being eaten at home where we already have access to silverware. Of course we still want the option for those of us who may need them, but moving that to an OPTION is the best choice. The default should be to only provide accessories if requested.

The externalized costs of all these ‘freebies’ must be borne by those who benefit most from our patronage: the corporations! Our municipal & commercial trash and recycling services are incapable of solving or even dealing efficiently with the tons of single use plastic that enter the waste stream every day due to policies such as automatically giving plastic food ware even when it’s completely unnecessary. This motion is a NO BRAINER! Please vote to pass it and enact it immediately! #SkipTheStuff is a win-win for our LA communities, businesses, and environment.??? Comments for Public Posting: According to the World Economic Forum, 40 billion plastic utensils are discarded annually. While a minor step, the utensil opt-in policy will reduce the amount of unneeded and useless utensils delivered and therefore, discarded. Residents and employees generally have reusable utensils at their disposal in their respective homes and places of work. Therefore, the burden placed upon consumers/citizens is negligible if non-existent. The measure prevents the automatic and unnecessary generation of waste. This policy will mandate as well as potentially engender more sustainable and conscious consumption practices. In order to reduce waste, particularly plastic waste, and engender a zero waste society, large and small scale changes are necessary. This is one small policy and behavioral change that can and must be taken to address the waste crisis. That being said, public education regarding the waste crisis and sustainable practices as well as more significant actions are needed beyond this measure. As a citizen and environmental activist, I fully support this action and further zero waste initiatives.

The City of LA has enacted a strong zero waste goal as part of their overall LA City pLAn. Comments for Public Posting: Hello Council Members. Thank you for considering an accessory on-request law. I strongly support Agenda Item 7, the #SkipTheStuff motion to require foodware accessories on-request. I am the Program Director of ReThink Disposable. Since 2011, we've worked with hundreds of restaurants and institutions to improve operational efficiency and sustainable practices. The primary way we do this is by integrating more reusables into food service and conducting employee training so that accessories are only given out when requested. Using our tested food packaging audits, we've found that our restaurant partners save thousands of dollars every year from these practices. Many restaurants are already skipping the stuff. This law will ensure that this simple behavior change is on everyone's mind, from the owner to consumer. #SkipTheStuff is an easy ask of our beloved restaurants, but will take us very far in the reduction of plastic waste. And it helps with a restaurant's bottom line! Thank you for the opportunity to comment. Please pass this important motion today.

Think of how much waste would be saved. I never need the extras and I'm sure many others don't either. As someone who has been working on reducing my dependency on plastic for the last 5 years, I have had to adjust my values along with everyone else due to the pandemic. Supporting local small businesses and family owned restaurants at the expense of the plastic takeout containers took priority over reducing the amount of waste I produced. By passing this motion to move forward with #SkipTheStuff and making plastic utensils by request only, it is the first step in easing the strain on our environment that will have an impact far beyond this pandemic. Thank you for your time.

Walk down the street before street cleaning day. we have to find ways to reduce plastic, and during the pandemic it has only gotten worse. Many people right now are doing pickup and takeout to eat at their own homes and have no need for utensils. It makes more sense to have people request than just mass give them to everyone. Every little bit counts. Please vote to pass.

Comments for Public Posting: Dear City Council, As a Los Angeles resident and marine scientist who co-founded the 5 Gyres Institute, led over a dozen expeditions to study ocean plastic pollution and published 20+ research papers on plastic pollution impacts and distribution of microplastics across the global ocean, I implore you to support Agenda Item 7, the #SkipTheStuff motion to require foodware accessories on-request. For the good of our city and to shine a leading example of intelligent policy for all to follow, we can demonstrate how a circular economy for plastics and packaging works in a large American city. Over the last 15 years of my career, I've had endless offline conversations with industry over Extended Producer Responsibility and the Reuse Economy. There is consistent agreement that the business-case for reducing the consumption of single use plastics is strong when applied equally across the city. The result is reduced cost to taxpayers for cleanup, reduced urban blight, and we'll stop the trickle of single-use plastics to our beloved ocean. Collectively, we all win when preventative strategies to end plastic pollution are equitable, consistently applied, and rooted in the best science available. Thank you for this opportunity to comment. Marcus Eriksen, PhD
Director of Research and Co-founder 5 Gyres Institute

Comments for Public Posting: I strongly support Agenda Item 7, the #SkipTheStuff motion to require foodware accessories on-request. Providing takeout "extras" only on-request saves restaurants money and reduces unnecessary single-use disposable waste. #SkipTheStuff is a win-win for our LA communities, businesses, and environment.??? I commend the council for their leadership and urge you to pass this motion today. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. Natalie Hernandez Climate Resolve

Providing takeout extras only when requested, saves Los Angeles businesses money, reduces waist, and protect our environment. Single use plastic from takeout delivery delivery restaurants is an issue that needs to be solved. #SkipTheStuff
