Comments for Public Posting: Marilyn Monroe is the icon of Hollywood. The house of hers in Helena is the only one she had bought for herself. She had loved the house and is a historical landmark for its architecture and a piece of Hollywood history. When we wipe away history of what Hollywood is then we have nothing left. Jaynes Mansfield's house was torn down and still is just dirt. It was useless to tear down the property. We need to protect Marilyn's legacy from an eyesore of a mega mansion. The spelling tore down a beautiful property to build a huge house that was hard to sell. Same with Pia Zadora and tearing down Pickfair. Beautiful houses gone. R respect for Marilyn's memory and what she is to Hollywood.

Comments for Public Posting: Marilyn Monroe was the most famous woman that has ever lived. To demolish her home when we have a chance to preserve it forever, will be regretted. Please consider keeping this residence to honor her legacy. I wish I could do something more. Jason New York

Comments for Public Posting: Please consider to importance of not only the architecture significance but also how the home is linked to Marilyn Monroe. Once something like this is gone there is no undoing. Relocation of this home seems like perfect solution the current land owners but also honoring Marilyn Monroe and preservation of this home I would love the chance to see it as would many others Please again consider the finality of not preserving this home

Comments for Public Posting: I believe Marilyn Monroe's home is an important part of the historical and cultural legacy of Los Angeles . Not only is it a memorial to a legendary actress, it is also an example of beautiful Spanish Style architecture. I think Marilyn's home should be preserved as a historical landmark for generations to enjoy.
