Comments for Public Posting: Hello again...I just wrote to you a couple of days ago but now I have another idea that may be helpful. To better regulate parties and noise, there are occupancy trackers that do this. Some of these are listed on the Airbnb website to help hosts. I've never used one cause I I don't have this problem but I know some neighborhoods suffer, especially those with "Hollywood " in the address. Anyway, some of these apps track how many people are hooking up to the hosts' WiFi, which is great way to know what's going on. I'm just thinking that maybe this could be something the city could also hook up to? Your contacts at Airbnb will know about this. Anyway, thx for listening....
