Comments for Public Posting: The “drinking establishment” in my neighborhood “serves food” from food trucks that are parked on the street during the evening mostly on weekends. There is no food served on site. This place of business stays open until 2am every night. The amplified music, which is not allowed per the city's noise ordinance, is also a major problem. They also have an Al Fresco permit. They are in blatant violation of the permit and no one is doing a thing to remedy their obvious disregard for the regulations that are in place to assist bona fide restaurants who actually deserve the help from the city. The closest residents are just across a narrow street. You would not want this bar (not restaurant) in your neighborhood.
