Comments for Public Posting: I support the designation of Marilyn Monroe's former Brentwood residence as a Historic Cultural Monument. Marilyn Monroe was a true Hollywood icon and left a legacy in cinema. The residence itself is of significant value for being representative of the Spanish Colonial Revival architectural style in 1920's Los Angeles.

Comments for Public Posting: Hello, I am writing to express my strong support for designating the Marilyn Monroe Residence in Brentwood as a Historic-Cultural Monument (HCM). As a Los Angeles local, born and raised - I believe that the house should be preserved as a historical site due to its significance for being owned by American icon Marilyn Monroe and being an integral part of the Los Angeles landscape and legacy as an architectural structure. Every year, more and more unique and retro houses are being torn down for soulless modern developments and condos -- stripping the land of history and true culture. Especially with the home being inhabited and being the place of death by possibly the most famous American actress of all time, who changed the meaning of celebrity itself and is known for being a strong advocate for animal rights, African American rights, and being a symbol for women's sexual liberation, this home should be treated with respect as a place of local and US history. I urge you and the City of Los Angeles to stand firm against this lawsuit and to proceed with the HCM designation process.
