Comments for Public Posting: I support this motion because pedestrian deaths are at a two decade high, and we need to educate motorists on the importance of driving safely around vulnerable road users and giving them the right of way. Also “Jaywalking” is now decriminalized and drivers need to be aware of this and slow down on major streets where people may be trying to cross. Let's make our streets more safe and walkable!

Comments for Public Posting: I am in support of this motion! Pedestrian deaths are the highest they've been in two decades. Educating drivers on how dangerous cars can be to pedestrians and cyclists, and how to be safe around them, what to look for, how to give them the right of way, etc., would be a really great move to try and reduce deaths, and also continue working to change LA's car-centrist culture. This is also important because of the recent law passed that decriminalizes jaywalking. Drivers need to be aware of this and slow down on major streets where people may be trying to cross.

Comments for Public Posting: Streets are for everyone, not just cars. Drivers need to understand that they do not own the road and share it with other users. A car has the ability to do far more damage towards a cyclist or pedestrian - driving is not a right, it's a privilege.

Comments for Public Posting: Pedestrian deaths are at a two decade high. We need to educate motorists on the importance of driving safely around vulnerable road users and giving them the right of way. Crossing the street at any point as long as it is reasonably safe for the pedestrian is now decriminalized and drivers need to be aware of this and slow down on major streets where people may be trying to cross.

Comments for Public Posting: I'm writing to support this motion. More pedestrians are being killed than in the last 20 years and drivers must also be more vigilant now that jaywalking has been decriminalized!
