Comments for Public Posting: I have been listing a bedroom in my home via Airbnb since 2015. The extended home permit (which is quite expensive) allows me to continue to afford to live in my home. The income helps with repairs and maintenance, I've lived in my home, built in 1926, since 1990, and hope to continue doing so in the foreseeable future.

Comments for Public Posting: Based on the current economy, if we eliminate the homesharing permit then I will be unable to make ends meet. It also leaves myself and my family vulnerable in this volatile economy.

Comments for Public Posting: Hello, this is a quick note to say that I have been AirBNB a room in my main residence for many years now. I have always filed for the extended permit and would be greatly disappointed if this did not no longer exist. I am 63 years old and will lie on this income to be able to live and pay my mortgage here in Los Angeles. Please do not remove this possibility. It is hard enough only to be allowed to rent one room instead of several as we used to.
