Summary: The Arroyo Seco Neighborhood Council (ASNC) supports motion 20-1365, calling for the Los Angeles Department of Transportation (LADOT) to report on solutions for expansion and broadening of economic hardship relief programs for people who have received parking fines. We recognize that without Federal aid, the City is facing a budget crisis, but seeking to reduce that imbalance through regressive measures like parking fines will only result in furthering economic disparity. The recent benefit offered for paying your fine within the first 48 hours favors people who have savings, but those living paycheck to paycheck don't have the resources needed to pay a parking ticket right away. While we support the City studying more progressive means of implementing parking fines, we urge the City to stop parking enforcement for the duration of the pandemic or until the study's findings can be implemented. The current parking citation system amounts to a regressive tax on the lowest income residents of the city.
