Comments for Public Posting: I am commenting on the need for Mount Washington to be added as a Special Use District. We live on a dead-end street off of Glenwood Avenue, which is in and of itself a windy narrow road with cars and trucks parked along the road. But our address is at the very end of Colina Alley which is very problematic. There is a steep incline turning onto the alley from Glenwood that many MANY trucks have not been able to navigate and end up getting stuck, blocking the only entrance into and out of Colina Alley. Once on Colina, I can barely make it past the resident's cars in my SUV. So if I cannot make it past the cars, a fire truck will never make it. People never move their cars during red flag warnings and it is frightening to imagine needing a fire truck. With the outrageous amount of fireworks going off in this area lately, and the kind of gigantic fireworks being used, this is a recipe for disaster. We also have a dirt road in front of us that we continually put gravel on. We keep up with our brush clearance and do what we can, but there are people around us who do not, and who do not have retaining walls to keep their dirt from falling into the alley. We are doing what we can, and we are asking the City of Los Angeles to help us stay safe, as well as keeping the rest of the residents in this area safe.
