Comments for Public Posting: Please protect the building at 12244 West Pico Boulevard, known as the Chili Bowl Building. This is one of the very last examples of programmatic architecture in all of Los Angeles and is worthy of protection and preservation. It would be an epic loss to the architectural culture of the city! Please please please make this building a historic cultural monument!! We can't suffer more loss!!

Comments for Public Posting: Please preserve this historic building. We've lost too many pieces of Los Angeles history just because it's not viewed as traditional/normative historical architecture. This city is rapidly losing it's identity and soon it will all be stick frame buildings, with no character or meaning.
