Comments for Public Posting: The report is flawed. It assumes that protestors are all potential criminals waiting to commit crimes. It ignores that the mere presence of police with guns is intimidating. Here are the recommendations that LAPD should adopt regarding protestors who are merely protesting: 1) LAPD cannot aim or use guns or less-lethal weapons at or near protestors 2) LAPD cannot use tear gas on protestors 3) LAPD cannot declare an "unlawful assembly" in regards to protestors 4) LAPD cannot stalk, follow, or observe protestors for merely protesting 5) LAPD cannot shine flashlights in protestors' eyes 6) LAPD cannot arrest protestors 7) LAPD cannot detain protestors 8) LAPD cannot intentionally instigate a conflict with protestors by blocking the protestors' path 9) LAPD cannot "kettle" protestors 10) LAPD cannot accelerate cars into protestors 11) If protestors are detained, they cannot be detained for longer than 15 minutes without a bathroom break or water. 12) If protestors are handcuffed with zipties, LAPD cannot use a knife to slice into the protestors' hands when cutting the zipties open. Also, this report is flawed because it does not mention that LAPD intentionally instigated violence against protestors, including use of batons in barbaric beatings, shooting with bullets at close range, accelerating cars into pedestrians, barbarically cutting into protesters' hands with a knife to remove zipties and using the same bloody knife on multiple protestors, and detaining protestors for 5+ hours without bathroom breaks or food/water.
