Comments for Public Posting: I do not want this to happen. I want my neighborhood to remain pleasant and vagrant free. I don't understand why law enforcement can't deal with this by arresting people for whatever laws they are breaking. Get these people off the street. They either belong in jail or a homeless shelter or a mental institution. If living on the street is what they prefer, then they must have mental issues, a drug problem or a law enforcement problem. Stop ignoring the problem and fix it.

Comments for Public Posting: I would like to voice my opposition to Councilmember Mike Bonin's motion to set up homeless shelters in Dockweiler Beach and Fisherman's Village parking areas. These parking areas provide coastal access for all residents of Los Angeles and LA County, and should not be turned into homeless camps. Parking is already extremely limited in all beach and marina areas, and eliminating public parking will just intensify the problem. Trips to the beach are one of the few recreational options in Southern California that are affordable to all Angelenos. They are a "great equalizer" in a city divided by great disparities in wealth: Everyone can enjoy a day at the beach, if they can find a place to park. Taking away precious beach parking spaces is a very poor use of an extremely limited resource. Los Angeles is a huge city. There are surely better places for homeless shelters than our precious beaches. Sincerely Reid Harrison Playa del Rey
