Summary: The Hermon Neighborhood Council would like to express our support for this Motion (20-0769), and we urge the City to develop and invest in an unarmed crisis response program, similar to the Crisis Assistance Helping Out On The Streets (CAHOOTS) Program in Eugene, Oregon. Roughly 92 percent of calls that the Los Angeles Police Department responds to are nonviolent, and the City uses LAPD officers as first responders in a variety of service calls for which they are not specially trained. The arrival of armed officers can exacerbate and escalate situations, especially in mental health crises. Studies have shown that people with mental illness account for 1 in 4 people killed in police encounters, and people with severe untreated mental illness are 16 times more likely to be killed during an encounter with police. We applaud the City for exploring unarmed crisis response options and seeking community feedback; at the same time, we urge the City to begin rolling out such pilot programs as soon as possible.

Community Impact Statement to Support Unarmed Model of Crisis Response / Non-Violent Calls for Service / Non-Law Enforcement Agencies

The Hermon Neighborhood Council would like to express our support for this Motion (20-0769), and we urge the City to develop and invest in an unarmed crisis response program, similar to the Crisis Assistance Helping Out On The Streets (CAHOOTS) Program in Eugene, Oregon.

The arrival of armed officers can exacerbate and escalate situations, especially in mental health crises. Studies have shown that people with mental illness account for 1 in 4 people killed in police encounters, and people with severe untreated mental illness are 16 times more likely to be killed during an encounter with police.

We applaud the City for exploring unarmed crisis response options and seeking community feedback; at the same time, we urge the City to begin rolling out such pilot programs as soon as possible.
