Comments for Public Posting: This is a message of support for The Chili Bowl at 12244 W. Pico Blvd La, Ca 90064 receiving historical building designation. The Chili Bowl is exactly the type of historic building that gives a city character and a sense of history. All the current owners want to do is tear it down and develop. Once a building like this is gone, the history goes with it. All great cities have historical landmarks and deep roots. West LA should be no exception. There is room enough for both. Los Angeles is a “young” city, and I understand that a 1940’s Chili Bowl is not a 14th century castle, but it is a shining example of the type of ingenuity and creativity this city was built on. Plus, it’s just an interesting and unique piece of architecture. Keep LA Interesting please!
