Comments for Public Posting: IF this passes, i better see LAPD Ticketing people sitting at a bus stop with their 'Backpacks & grocery bags' because that be maintaining their property near them. Even tho they're not homeless, this should apply to -everyone- otherwise it's just classism. With that said. My proposed solution based on the following facts: Mitch O'Farrell L.A. City Council has been quoted saying when asked: how can people be placed in permanent homes if you don't know where there are. "That's a great point," he says. "That's LAHSA's job and they are not doing their job." Source:

On Jul 19th. Gavin Newsom sign a $12B bill to address homelessness. 12B could give every homeless person a apartment for one year. If the city can get roughly 4.6B. Regardless of cost of rent. The City could house the homeless for two to three years at 70k per unit (Unit being individual or Family) This is not including the extra funding coming from Biden plan or the USICH or HUD. This would give any person or family enough time to gain stability. How about asking the County: why is DPSS allowed to giving moving vouchers and four month rental vouchers to families only but not individuals. Source:

For example, LA City Council Member Mike Bonin points out on his twitter that "Nelson, who many wrongly considered "service resistant" is sleeping indoors.". How about addressing letting these agencies that get away with marking the homeless wrongfully service resistant. Source:

Sidewalks are paid for by the tax payer unless you know, LA Plans to mark with a stamp. What sidewalks were not paid for by tax dollars.
