RE: Los Angeles Fair Work Week Ordinance (Council File 19-0229)

On behalf of Pico Union Neighborhood Council (PUNC), I want to express our strong support for the LA Fair Workweek Ordinance (FWW) and would like to thank you for your leadership on moving the ordinance forward. It is the duty of our council to advise the legislative body of the city on issues that are pressing for our stakeholders. The Pico Union area is predominantly working class and PUNC supports policies that help bring safety and security to our community. The FWW will make great improvements in the lived experiences of our community. This pandemic has shown us all that we cannot move forward without investing in the health and wellbeing of all residents.

The retail industry is the second largest employer in Los Angeles, with over 140,000 retail workers in the city, with a majority of the workers from communities of color and identifying as women. As you are aware, the pandemic rattled this industry as workers in this sector became frontline essential heroes responsible for connecting our communities with the food and resources needed during these uncertain times. Many workers have been forced to choose between their health and a paycheck—and they continue to meet the challenges of the pandemic while big corporations in this sector keep bringing in record profits.

As we move toward recovery from this unprecedented pandemic, a comprehensive FWW policy will make retail and grocery work more just for these thousands of workers, make jobs in this sector sustainable, and will help uplift our communities who have been most impacted by the pandemic. Unfair scheduling impacts a huge number of working families in our city, with unstable work hours upholding a system of income inequality that keeps communities in poverty: workers in this sector are the least well off in the LA economy. The “Hour Crisis” report released by the UCLA Labor Center showed that 8 out of 10 retail workers in Los Angeles do not have a set weekly schedule, with 77 percent of workers receiving their schedules no more than one week in advance—even day-of and last-minute scheduling changes are common. This instability in scheduling has detrimental effects that also lead to poor health, stress, anxiety, lack of sleep, irregular meal times, missed medical appointments, no time off for emergencies or special events, and little chance to plan ahead for family, school, and additional work commitments. A recent study released by The Economic Round Table found that over 58% of Kroger workers have work schedules that change at least every week, and that 67% say they do not earn enough money to pay for basic expenses every month.

Our retail and grocery workers deserve access to high quality jobs and scheduling stability that affords them a good quality of life, positive work-life balance, dignity, and respect.

The heart of this policy will ensure that retail workers in the city:

- Receive two weeks’ notice of their schedules;
- Are not forced to work “clopening” shifts or to remain “on-call” for shifts;
- Will not be retaliated against for requesting a change in their shift;
- Will receive additional compensation for last-minute changes to their schedules; and
- Will be offered additional hours at their place of employment before employers hire additional part-time workers.

The policy will apply to employers with at least 300 employees globally in the retail and grocery sector, including chains and franchises, covering around 70,000 workers in the city.

We look forward to Los Angeles joining the growing chorus of cities that have passed fair scheduling policies, including New York City, San Francisco, Seattle, Philadelphia, and Chicago. Our essential workers in the retail and grocery industry should not have to keep facing the same challenges that they did prior to the pandemic.

Thank you for your leadership.
