Comments for Public Posting: 900 days that is how long your temporary eviction moratorium has lasted. 900 days of not being paid rent and having to continue to pay for insurance, mortgages, taxes and repairs without any income. The city council thinks this is fair and okay. While my tenant hasn't paid for rent she was able to buy a car, go on vacations, buy a new bed and has Amazon packages arriving daily. But why would she pay rent, the city of LA says she doesn't have to. If you call the Los Angeles Housing and Community Investments line the staff is encouraging people not to pay rent. I have heard them say it over the phone. The LA city council is destroying affordable housing for votes. We are getting our lawyers together and coming after you LA city council. Get ready to pay up. You have made so many mistakes and it's time for you to be accountable for recklessly allowing the eviction moratorium to "temporarily" exist for 900 days!
