Comments for Public Posting: I believe all cities should endorse the plant based treaty for the sake of animal lives, planetary health and human health. Once LA endorses the plant based treaty hopefully other cities will follow suit and we can get some momentum going to make it better for all life on earth.

Comments for Public Posting: This treaty is fucking stupid. Some people have severe illness and allergies and cannot rely on primarily plant based- what about all these kids with egg, legume, peanut, and tree nut allergies? The only the protein some people can eat IS MEAT! How about you stop letting so many fucking people move into LA and we won't need to produce to much fucking food for them? Also that will create less Damage to the already shitty roads. Signed, a life long Angeleno ??

Comments for Public Posting: Thank you for adopting the plant-based treaty to help improve human health, the environment and animal welfare. Animal agriculture is destroying the planet. A plant-based food system will help decrease greenhouse gases, along with decreasing the risk for heart disease, diabetes, cancer, high blood pressure and high cholesterol. A plant-based food system will also free billions of farm animals from a cruel life of pain and suffering. Thank you for caring! For the planet, Kathleen Kastner

Comments for Public Posting: Climate change is here and it is a threat. Los Angeles cannot afford higher temperatures and increased water scarcity. Animal agriculture contributes to climate change through deforestation and the release of methane into the atmosphere. Animal agriculture wastes water and land, pollutes rivers and oceans and destroys ecosystems. Angelinos already access to so much great plant based food and know better than most of the country that we don't have to compromise flavor or the environment with our food choices. Help Los Angeles prepare to thrive in a changing planet and lead the way for other American cities to do the same.
