Comments for Public Posting: My name is Travis Caples, and I live on the Westside of Los Angeles. I learned about the Interactive Kiosk Experience and was immediately hooked on the concept. So much that I asked what I could do to support this effort. I want to see these in Los Angeles. I think these life-sized tablets are a slam dunk for any city, but especially here in L.A. As an entrepreneur myself I love how the IKE's offer a seamless assist for for small businesses in our city. I am also a huge fan of the free wifi access points that the IKE's provide. I am so excited to be a part of a community that would be considering this kind of technology that puts the community first and I cannot wait for them to get to Los Angeles. Thank you, Travis Caples

Comments for Public Posting: My name is Kimberly Yudt and I am a local mental health professional and business owner in Los Angeles County and I am contacting you to express my support for the IKEs project coming to the great city of Los Angeles. Of course the kiosks have some fancy and intuitive features that can help boost our tourist economy and help pedestrians find the cultural events and meet their hospitality needs. As a small business owner I am extremely excited about that functionality during these times where our small businesses have been impacted significantly by the COVID-19 pandemic. Additionally and possibly most important is what these kiosks can do for our communities of need. The homeless community in particular can find shelter and the essential services they need to simply survive and in a city that is dealing with the tragedy of increasing homelessness I can think of few things better than more tools for the underserved. Please consider this Los Angeles resident in full support of the Interactive Kiosk Experience. Warmly, Kimberly Yudt Therapist - Private Practice

Comments for Public Posting: I'd like to share my support for the IKEs, the Interactive Kiosk Experience currently in consideration. It is a smart, relevant idea with positive social impacts for the users and small businesses. I think IKE is a smart bit of infrastructure to build for several reasons, it keeps us connected even when we are receiving bad reception, have lost our phones, or fold older users or low-income users who don't have cell phones at all. If I were in an area unfamiliar to me and I got lost, knowing an IKE was close by would create immediate comfort. Supporting small businesses is another incredible impact that these kiosks will provide and felt throughout our communities. Our local shops need a leg up, especially after the year we have had with COVID, because they serve as community staples that directly contribute to the local community. And the community is looking to patron these places! It's been a hard year, but folks are beginning to come out and connecting local businesses to these folks looking to explore is exactly what we need. We often prioritize large corporations that choose to save money by investing overseas instead of driving the local economy, and that needs to stop. I am glad these kiosks will drive more foot traffic into small businesses based on proximity at no cost. Not only are they functional, it looks like a fun experience navigating around with these on your side. I hope you will approve of the Interactive Kiosk Experience, also known as IKE. Respectfully, D. Hunter

Comments for Public Posting: I am writing in support of the IKEs project for Los Angeles. My name is Camila Mussi and I am a local resident of Los Angeles located on the westside near the beach cities. Having lived in LA for a couple years now I always love how our city is forward thinking and willing to integrate new technology and tools to help put our community first. I view the Interactive Kiosk Experience as another way to improve our city. These devices will help make our city, especially our downtown areas more accessible, easier to navigate, and more desirable for our residents and potential tourist economies. Thank you Camilla Mussi

Comments for Public Posting: My name is Brenden Mckinnis and I am an Anegelino and I'd like to share my support for the IKEs, the Interactive Kiosk Experience currently in consideration. As a local artist, avid foodie, and lover of the City of Angels I am greatly encouraged by what these kiosks could provide our residents, as well as myself (not going to lie). The ability to easily navigate our downtown cultural hubs, find hotel accommodations, and enjoy some of our City's best food and nightlife excite me greatly to not only enjoy myself but enjoy while on a date, with a friend, or accompanied by out of town visitors. Please make sure my support is considered when making decisions in regards to this project.

Comments for Public Posting: I am a local resident of the greater West Side and was excited to hear about the IKE project coming to the Greater Los Angeles Area. I feel personally inclined to inform you that I would directly benefit from these kiosks coming to our great city, along with countless others. First of all, just as a fan of small business and someone who's family has owned businesses and lived in LA for over 30 years, I am elated with the way these kiosks will help our small business owners in the city. The fingertip access to local restaurants, bars, and other LA small businesses is such a great alley-oop to our city in a time that we desperately need one. Secondly, these just make a lot of sense. The pedestrian navigation, wifi, city alerts, connection to various opportunities. Let's get these going! After seeing the way these kiosks have been deployed in other cities, I am excited to see what LA can do with these amazing tools. Thank you for your time and consideration. Sincerely, Daniel Kim
