Hello P.L.U.M. Committee.

I am writing to voice my support for the restaurant known as Pacific Dining Car to be given Historic Preservation Status, as well as the building which it has occupied for many decades.

The architecture of the building, the impeccable food, the waitstaff and the quality of service have all remained both top quality, and true to an earlier time in the history of Los Angeles. Restaurants of this kind have mostly disappeared from the Los Angeles area.

What makes this situation different is the family owning the business is still eager to return to operating the same quality restaurant that so many Angelenos have come to love. There really is nothing like Pacific Dining Car in Los Angeles.

My family have been regular customers of Pacific Dining Car for 5 generations. Though I wasn't around to attend, my great grandmother was taken there by her son, my grandfather, for Sunday brunch and also to celebrate birthdays and holidays. My father kept the tradition alive by taking his children to Pacific Dining Car regularly, and my brother's children have also been introduced to the charm and consistent quality of the PDC dining experience.

Please take the Historic Preservation Status of Pacific Dining Car seriously. The family is eager to return to the restaurant business, and continue their century of excellent service.

Sincerely,

Arianna Deleon
