Comments for Public Posting: Dear Councilmember Hutt, On August 4, 2022, the Cultural Heritage Commission voted unanimously to recommend that the Olympic oak tree gifted to gold medalist Cornelius Johnson, and his family home, be declared Los Angeles landmarks. On February 18, 2023, the story was featured on the national CBS Saturday Morning newscast. But as of this date, the house is still on the market, with the historic tree threatened with demolition for an ADU. Please schedule consideration of the monument to the PLUM Committee as soon as possible, so that it can be formally designated and its future preservation ensured.
