Comments for Public Posting: The Pacific Dining Cart IS a part of Los Angeles History. It is the light of the community which attracts people from all over to experience the heart of the city. This is not some new high tech restaurant that opens for a few years and disappears, like many do in Down Town LA. This is a restaurant that brings great history, nuance, and a great experience to its patrons. I am tired of great historical places such as this that disappear just to make room to place a mini mall or car wash. We need to save this historical place, which bring class and etiquette to a community which is trying to find its way through the fast pace life of tearing down the old to replace with new cookie cutter ideas. This restaurant has brought me many memories... from meeting my fiance, to having tea time with friends. It added a spark of indulgence, a place that is reachable to our community without having to drive to beverly hills. Why should other cities have the luxuries and benefits of high class dining. Pacific Dining cart is known to have popular actors, directors, law makers, and business people visit. Which also brings these people into a part of the city where nobody would dream of visiting. Pacific Dining Cart is one of the last features of this part of town which brings people from all over, a town that is lost to traffic and otherwise looked over by people during their commute. The Council says they want to make our city flourish, and what better than to keep its historical places intact and welcoming to visitors. Pacific Dining Cart has a place in the hearts of many Angelinos, its place amongst the other famous dining spots like Philip's, Eastside Italian Deli, Cole's, and Grand Central Market. These places bring people into a community that is constantly over looked by many. These places hold on to the historical prosperity that these small communities once held, and with the influential visitors of today, that prosperity can return. Please Save the Pacific Dining Cart, do not let another part of history be lost to the characterless stucco, steel, and concrete times ahead. We want to bring Los Angeles communities back to their prosperous time, then don't let another part of history become a plaque on the concrete side walk resembling the history that once stood there.

Comments for Public Posting: To whom it may concern, It is rather sad and frustrating that Los Angeles keeps destroying it's history. It seems if a building is over 50 years old, it needs to be torn down and replaced with some multi-use "McLego" structure. I am as old as LACMA, and that didn't make it to 60. Pacific Dining Car is a wonderful example of fine food served in a interesting space. Gone are the Brown Derby's, C.C. Brown's, Little Joe's, Tom Bergin's, Kelbo's, Chasen's, Nickodell... the list is long. As we speak, the Taix building is on the verge of extinction. All the great themed architecture that defined early and mid-nineteenth century LA has been replaced by building blocks without personality or significance. Pacific Dining car is a shining example of elegance in a themed dining experience. Please don't turn your back on Los Angeles history, yet again, SAVE THE PACIFIC DINING CAR!

Comments for Public Posting: I'm sure you've heard from many people regarding The Pacific Dining Car and how valuable it has been to the entire Los Angeles community. I want to express aspects of my experience that might not have been mentioned. The ambience and feel of PDC is unique. It is an elegant, cultured, quiet place where city residents of all backgrounds share elevated moments together. It really is a gathering place for the entire city. Secondly, being open 24 hours means it is the only venue in the city of that quality which is always available. There really is no other location, of any kind, to compare with PDC and it would be a real shame to lose it, for all of us. Thank you for your consideration.

Comments for Public Posting: Please save Pacific Dining Car! I would like to submit my appeal to protect the Pacific Dining Car restaurant. The restaurant is a cultural icon of Los Angeles, and a site of historical interest worthy of preservation. I myself have had generations of family events and dinners at the restaurant, from my great-grandfather's time through my children's. I hope we can come together to support the preservation of this historic site!

Comments for Public Posting: I have been enjoying the iconic Pacific Dining Car restaurant for decades. It is often remarked that LA is not great at preserving its history - this is a chance to prove the naysayers wrong!
