Comments for Public Posting: Los Angeles is losing the landmarks of what makes us the most unique city on the planet. No landmarks equates to less tourism. It's not just a cultural issue, it's a financial issue. We don't need another drab construction that will barely last 10 years. Developers should work around historical buildings on their property. Design your development so that it's an organic and tasteful compliment to the historical landmark. Make them a place of destination and not an eyesore.

Comments for Public Posting: I'm writing in support of the HCM designation of the Chili Bowl building within West LA on Pico Blvd. It is one of the last intact building's of its kind in LA and provides a unique architecture design within the neighborhood. I would love to see it remain in-tact and serving the community through good food service. Please consider denoting the building as a historical landmark!

Comments for Public Posting: Please DO NOT VOTE TO DEMOLISH "The Chili Bowl" It is a significant building in my home town of Los Angeles. We have lost so many beautiful buildings to greed and development. History has value too. Thanks.

Comments for Public Posting: Please save The Chili Bowl building. I'm a native of Los Angeles, and there are so few historic sites left. I want visitors to continue to have an enriching visit to LA and be able to see these sites and more. Thank you.
