Did you really expect you could defend a man who sexually assaulted his colleagues and not get his stink all over you? When you lay down with dogs, you have to expect those fleas to bite at your ankles. Tell me Imelda, was it worth it? Alienating 1 out of every 4 women? Perhaps before you extended him the grace of your magnanimous statements you should have asked if anything else was afoot? Your employees who reached out to express how vastly uncomfortable they were with him in your office - off to a great start there. You betrayed every women who works for you. Glad to see they can return betray tit for tat. Men who hurt women, they often do many other bad things. You owe each and every one of us an apology for this terrible decision. I'll be waiting. And until you do, you're on my list. I will be the biggest thorn in your side until you own just how wrong you were.
