

REPORT

THE PERSONNEL
DEPARTMENT

TO: Personnel, Audits and Hiring Committee	DATE 6/26/23
REFERENCE: 2018 Eligible Retirees / To-Be-Vacated Management Positions / Preparing Successors	COUNCIL FILE CF 17-1098
SUBJECT: PERSONNEL DEPARTMENT'S OVERVIEW OF SUBMITTED SUCCESSION PLANS

RECOMMENDATION: That the Personnel, Audits and Hiring Committee receive and file this report regarding updated succession plan information submitted to date by all City departments.

BACKGROUND:

The Council motion by Councilmember Koretz and seconded by Councilmember Englander on September 26, 2017, instructed the Personnel Department to report with an overview of succession plans submitted to date, and to highlight areas of concern where the identification and development of successor staff will be critical, especially in to-be-vacated management positions. The motion further instructed the Personnel Department to include recommendations that will ensure the development of a pool of qualified candidates for key positions, and recommendations to facilitate knowledge transfer from experienced employees before they retire.

DISCUSSION:

In compliance with Mayor Garcetti's Executive Directive No. 15 ("ED 15"), the Personnel Department assisted all City Departments with the development and submission of annual updates of their Equitable Workforce and Service Restorations Plans, which were due for submission on March 31, 2023. As part of these efforts, a form of questions was distributed to all City Departments/Offices in order to ensure that all aspects requested by Mayor Garcetti in ED 15 were addressed.

The Personnel Department analyzed the updated plans submitted in FY 22-23 to: (1) identify City-wide classifications that are at risk of being severely impacted by potential retirements based on the number of early and/or regular retirement eligible employees as of June 2023, 2024, and 2025; and (2) provide recommendations for succession planning, training, contactless government, knowledge transfer, a diverse workforce, and telecommuting based on shared City-wide themes. As a result of this analysis, the Citywide Summary Report of Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Plans has been prepared (Attachment A). It should be noted that all Plans submitted may be found online by visiting the Workforce Planning Website at <https://sites.google.com/view/cityofla-workforce-planning/home>.

In addition to providing these reports and recommendations, the Personnel Department is actively collaborating with departments by providing assistance which includes establishing and maintaining necessary eligible lists with qualified candidates to fulfill the staffing needs of departments and providing avenues to deliver training and employee development tools.

I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

On April 28, 2016 Mayor Garcetti issued Executive Directive 15: Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration (“ED-15”) instructing departments to prepare and annually update an Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Plan (“Plan”) to address front-line services, succession planning, and technology needs.

This report provides a summary and breakdown of citywide challenges, practices, and goals as reported by the City departments in the following areas:

- A. Operational, Organizational, and/or Workforce Changes
- B. Critical Classifications & Retirements
- C. LA Local Hire Programs
- D. Contactless Government and Office of the Future
- E. Knowledge Transfer
- F. Diversity Equity & Inclusion (DEI) in the Workplace
- G. Telecommuting Program

This report also includes six recommendations to assist departments in addressing matters related to process improvement, hiring, attrition, and DEI initiatives. In order to research, develop, and implement these recommendations, additional resources and funding would be required:

1. Prepare City departments and employees to conduct routine in-depth needs analyses for process improvement through an online training course provided by the Personnel Department, and expand targeted recruitment efforts for critical classifications.
2. Continue to improve and expand the LA Local Hire Programs (Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs), including the development of a “City 101” training to assist employees with navigating the civil service promotional process, while also focusing on increasing utilization from City departments; thus, create additional opportunities for underserved and underrepresented communities.
3. Collaborate with ITA to develop a digital toolkit of resources and experts to guide departments with implementing methods of “contactless” government that suit their needs, making sure to provide resources for online privacy/security and maintaining options to address technology gaps and the digital divide that may exist among constituents and various communities.

I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY (Cont'd)

5. Explore implementing all practices of diversity, equity and inclusion (“DEI”), seek to establish and utilize committees focused on DEI to address the unique challenges that departments face, and increase outreach to underrepresented populations.

6. Offer permanent flexible options of telecommuting (full-time, hybrid, occasional) to all eligible employees where possible, while implementing methods to maintain engagement, collaboration and communication. See Personnel Department guides for tips and resources.

II. BACKGROUND & SOURCES

The Personnel Department and the Office of the Mayor developed the 2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”). The Personnel Department reviewed and analyzed the responses to compile the data found in this report. A copy of the Form is included in this report’s Appendix, with the complete department response for this year and previous years are available online on the Workforce Planning website.

WORKFORCE ASSESSMENT DATA SOURCE

- Retirement eligibility as of June 30, 2022 was provided by LACERS.

III. WORKFORCE ASSESSMENT

I. CITY EMPLOYEES BY RETIREMENT ELIGIBILITY, AGE, AND SERVICE

The chart below breaks down the employee count, average number of service years, and the average age for each band of years of service (e.g., employees with less than 5 years of service, those with 5-9 years of service, and so forth).

Compared to June 2021, this data has largely remained consistent across the categories. There has been a 1% increase in the percentage of employees with less than 10 years of experience (June 2021 - 47%, June 2022 - 48%); therefore, Knowledge Transfer efforts continue to be imperative to the successful operations for departments since such a large portion of the workforce is relatively new to City service. The significant dip in employees with 10 - 14 years of service is attributed to the 2008 recession and the resulting hiring freeze and layoffs, as well as to the Separation Incentive Program (SIP) of 2021.

III. WORKFORCE ASSESSMENT (Cont'd)

II. CITY EMPLOYEES BY AGE

The chart below indicates the average age by department. The citywide average remains the same as previous years at 47 years old.

III. CITY EMPLOYEES BY GENDER

The June 2022 chart below introduces a third category labeled as Other, for those who identify as nonbinary or did not disclose their gender for an unknown reason. Since only 53 employees were identified as Other, this category made up less than 1% of the City workforce, and the male and female percentages remain unchanged from June 2021.

As can be seen in the Appendix, many job classifications still tend to be heavily dominated by one gender. While over 90% of clerical classifications (e.g., Secretary, Executive Administrative Assistant) are occupied by females, the same trend can be found with males in classifications involving manual labor, building, and construction trades (e.g., Carpenter, Tree Surgeon). Continued targeted recruitment efforts and resources are needed to narrow the gender gap for these classifications.

Additional reports related to citywide retirement eligibility, retirement eligibility by department, age, gender, and classification are included in this report's Appendix.

IV. EWSR PLAN CITYWIDE ANALYSIS & RECOMMENDATIONS

A. ORGANIZATIONAL, OPERATIONAL, AND WORKFORCE CHANGES

The City of Los Angeles’ (“City”) workforce has significantly changed since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, over three years ago. City Departments are determining what their ‘future of work’ will look like, whether that means returning to the office or having a telecommuting policy that meets the needs of their constituents while also taking into account the needs of their workforce, an increased demand for services, organizational changes, or a combination of various factors. The pandemic highlighted the need for City departments to reimagine their operational, organizational, and workforce trends. In accordance with Mayor Garcetti’s Executive Directive 15: Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration, 41 City departments updated their Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Plans by responding to the 2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”).

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING OPERATIONAL CHANGES IN FY 23-24

Of the 41 City departments that submitted the updated Form, 92% (38 of 41) reported that operational changes will impact the departments in FY 23-24, including technology upgrades, new equipment, flex/shared office space, new buildings, increased efficiency/production, new HR/payroll system, and a permanent telecommuting policy. The chart titled “No. of Departments Expecting Operational Changes in FY 23-24” shows the number of responding City departments that expect one or more of the operational changes indicated, with 94% (36 of 38) of responding departments anticipate technological upgrades and new equipment and 76% (29 of 38) anticipate an increased demand for services.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING ORGANIZATIONAL CHANGES IN FY 23-24

Approximately 51% of responding City departments (21 of 41) expect organizational changes in FY 23-24. Of these departments, 57% (12 of 21) expect budget increases, 47% (10 of 21) expect a department reorganization, 33% (7 of 21) expect budget cuts, and 33% (7 of 21) expect having renewed programs.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING WORKFORCE CHANGES IN FY 23-24

Additionally, approximately 90% of responding departments (37 of 41) also expect workforce changes in FY 23-24. Of the departments that expect workforce changes, 94% of departments (35 of 37) anticipate having new hires and/or increase in staffing levels, 72% (27 of 37) expect losing employees to promotional opportunities, and 67% (25 of 37) anticipate workforce changes due to retirements.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING OPERATIONAL CHANGES IN FY 24-25

As City departments continue to plan for the near future, 75% of responding departments (31 of 41) expect operational changes in FY 24-25. Of these departments, 90% (28 of 31) expect that the department will upgrade technology and bring in new equipment, 83% (26 of 31) anticipate new or expanded programs, 83% (26 of 31) anticipate new or expanded programs, and 80% (25 of 31) expect an increased demand for services.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING ORGANIZATIONAL CHANGES IN FY 24-25

Approximately 41% of responding departments (17 of 41) also expect organizational changes in FY 24-25. Of these departments, 52% (9 or 17) expect budget increases and 35% (6 or 17) expect reorganization.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS EXPECTING WORKFORCE CHANGES IN FY 24-25

Approximately 68% of responding departments (28 of 41) also expect workforce changes in FY 24-25. Of these departments, 85% (24 of 28) anticipate having new hires, 78% (22 of 28) expect workforce changes due to retirement, and 67% (19 of 28) anticipate losing employees to promotional opportunities.

BEST PRACTICES

TELECOMMUTING

The COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted the traditional workplace model, forcing the City to rethink the policies on remote work. Three years later, City departments and employees are preparing for what their new workplace environment will look like. For many City departments, the vision is a hybrid model that combines remote work and time in the office. As the City continues to think about the pre-pandemic normalcy, telecommuting policies are being developed and finalized to attract and retain City employees while maintaining employee productivity and morale. Some examples include:

- The Department of Transportation is working on a permanent telecommuting policy for approximately 400 staff members who are currently telecommuting. As part of the telecommuting policy, the department plans to offer a hybrid/part-time schedule which will allow employees to work away from the City worksite at a safe alternate work location, 1-4 days per week on an established recurring schedule.
- The Los Angeles Zoo Department has implemented a permanent telecommuting policy, which allows employees to work a hybrid/part-time schedule.
- The Office of the City Administrative Officer (CAO) has implemented a permanent telecommuting policy that allows employees to work a hybrid schedule based on the functions of their position and needs of the department. The telecommuting policy requires CAO staff to be in the office two days per week. Exceptions are granted to the policy to allow only one day of in-office work to the extent possible and based on employee need. The policy allows for telecommuting and in-office days to be “swapped” within the same calendar week with approval of the supervisor to allow maximum flexibility for staff.

TECHNOLOGY

Technological advancements have entirely shaped the way the City conducts business by making processes more efficient, integrated and streamlined. Not only has technology changed the way we communicate, but it has also helped the City enable remote work, stay organized, increase productivity and collaboration, improve efficiencies, and keep information more secure. Many departments are currently upgrading their technology or anticipate technological changes in the FY 2023-24. Some examples include:

- The Los Angeles Police Department will increase the use of mobile phones for Officers in the field to allow them to complete administrative duties while in the field.
- The Aging Department is seeking to revamp their Aging Client Tracking System that will provide numerous benefits including improved efficiency, enhanced customer experiences, better data management, increased competitiveness, and improved decision-making capabilities.

TECHNOLOGY (Cont'd)

- The Community Investment for Families Department will continue to issue laptops and cell phones to all employees and transition their files to a cloud-based network.
- The Library Department will be participating in the PERKS/Viatron project to digitize employees' personnel folders.
- City departments will continue to enter and transfer City employees' information into the Human Resources and Payroll (HRP) system, Workday. The Personnel Department is currently implementing the new phases of Workday and will continue to assist citywide staff on the transition of this system.

SERVICES

As the City of Los Angeles recovers from the COVID-19 pandemic, the economic shift has undoubtedly accelerated the demand for City services. The following City departments are monitoring these demands and have started discussions to proactively approach these services:

- The Los Angeles City Employee Retirement System Department (LACERS) anticipates that the volume of Member calls/contacts to the Member Service Center will increase as more Members retire and consider their options through their retirement. LACERS is determining whether the City's return to in-office phase will increase City retirement applications.
- The Department of Neighborhood Empowerment anticipates an increased demand for services such as roster teams, election awareness and engagement, Neighborhood Council introductions, training, outreach, and social media engagements.
- The Recreation and Parks Department anticipates an increased demand for senior services and a youth sports program which will be funded by the Olympic Committee 2028.
- The Public Works Bureau of Engineering will be responsible for the increased demand for services to address the City's housing and infrastructure needs.
- The Los Angeles Housing Department is implementing the new tenant protection ordinances adopted by City Council in connection with the end of Covid-19 renter protections. This work will require: increase staffing, resources for eviction defense, tenant anti-harassment work, investigation of illegal eviction claims, as well as administering programs designed to assist "mom and pop" landlords.
- As the City continues to grow in size and attempts to hire, the demands of services for the CAO will continue to increase as they receive more requests to review the administrative and policy matters of positions/classifications.

B. CRITICAL CLASSES & RETIREMENTS

RETIREMENTS

The City of Los Angeles, along with most public and private sectors, are experiencing the impact of the retirement of the baby boomer generation. This generation includes individuals born between 1946 and 1964, with the youngest being 59 and the oldest turning 77 this year. Also commonly referred to as the “silver tsunami”, this retirement wave has been anticipated for quite some time and will continue to impact the workforce in the near future. In fact, according to the IPMA-HR State and Local Workforce Report of 2022, 41% of survey respondents believe the largest anticipated number of potential retirements will take place in the next few years, with 22% believing it is happening right now.

According to the same report<sup>1</sup>, city governments like the City of Los Angeles face unique challenges related to retirements compared to the private sector, as employees tend to be older and have longer tenures in local government than in the private sector. This further makes the retirement of long term government workers far more impactful, as these employees are taking with them years of institutional knowledge and experience.

In addition to an aging workforce, The City experienced higher than average retirements in FY 20-21 due to SIP, with a total of 2,035 City employees retiring, as seen in the chart below.

RETIREMENTS (Cont'd)

Although it appears that the percentage of City employees eligible for retirement has decreased over the years, the percentage of City employees who actually retire each fiscal year has steadily increased (when disregarding the SIP spike in FY 2020-2021), and it is expected that the percentage of retirees will continue to increase in the coming years.

2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”) asked departments how they dealt with Service and/or Disability Retirements in FY 2021 - 2022/2022 - 2023. Approximately 70% of departments (29 of 41) stated that they were able to backfill positions in order to maintain services with the experienced retirements. Approximately 68% of department indicated utilizing reallocation and reassignment of duties (28 of 41), 61% reported providing “Acting” roles (25 of 41), 53% applied emergency appointments (22 of 41) and promotions (22 of 41) , and 51% used Overtime (21 of 41). 14% of departments responded with N/A (6 of 41).

In addition to retirements and SIP, the COVID-19 pandemic also served as a catalyst for the brought upon opportunities for telework and “The Great Resignation”, a term used to describe the 4.4 million resignations seen in America in 2021, specifically amongst Millennials and Generation Z, in September 2021.<sup>2</sup>

As the City loses institutional knowledge from a retiring older workforce and wrestles with attracting, training, and retaining the younger generation, it is important for the City to identify critical classifications and identify ways to consistently fill vacancies and ensure an ongoing and consistent knowledge transfer mechanism is in place to ensure knowledge is being transferred from senior level employees to the rest of the workforce.

CRITICAL CLASSIFICATIONS

The 2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”) defines “critical classifications” as those that would create a critical shortage, undue hardship, or otherwise negatively impact departmental operations if left vacant.

To ensure the City’s success, it is crucial for critical classifications to be fully staffed, and the Personnel Department is dedicated to providing departments with support on their hiring needs. By gathering and identifying a list of critical classifications, we can be proactive in ensuring there are eligible lists available and/or alternative pathways to fill vacancies expeditiously , continue City services and operations, and prepare for retirements, resignations, or any potential increases in demand.

In analyzing the responses provided by 41 departments to the Form, 41 classifications were considered critical by at least three responding departments.

According to the table above, the following “class series” were mentioned by the most departments as the most critical classifications:

- Management Analyst series (#1,#2 and #4)
- Accounting series (#3, #6, #9)
- Systems Programmer series (#5, #7, #8)
- Administrative Clerk series (#10, #11)

ATTRITION

Additionally, last year, departments reported attrition as a result of employee transfers to other departments. This form asked departments to list classifications that experienced attrition due to transfer to another department in FY 2021 - 2022 and/or 2022-2023.

A chart of the top 10 classifications that experienced attrition is below.

CLASSIFICATION	DEPTS. (out of 41)	# OF DEPTS
Management Analyst	21	51%
Administrative Clerk	14	36%
Management Assistant	13	31%
Senior Management Analyst	11	26%
Senior Administrative Clerk	10	24%
Accountant	10	24%
Systems Analyst	9	21%
Accounting Clerk	9	21%
Personnel Analyst	5	12%
Senior Personnel Analyst	5	12%

Many of these classifications correlate with the top classifications that departments deem critical:

CRITICAL CLASSIFICATIONS	CLASSES EXPERIENCING ATTRITION
Management Analyst (24/41)	Management Analyst (21/41)
Senior Management Analyst (18/41)	Administrative Clerk (14/41)
Accountant (16/41)	Management Assistant (13/41)
Management Assistant (15/41)	Senior Administrative Clerk (11/41)
Systems Analyst (15/41)	Systems Analyst (9/41)
Accounting Clerk (13/41)	Accounting Clerk (9/41)

Furthermore, departments were asked to provide information on new classifications they believe are required in order to meet new and evolving operational department needs.

Responses to this question ranged from wanting to propose new classifications as a way to having more “entry-level” opportunities, classifications to address higher level duties and opportunities for promotion, wanting new classifications to replace existing classes both as a way to mitigate attrition and to better specialize classes to their specific needs, revisions and updates to existing classifications to broaden scopes, and to provide promotional opportunities.

17 departments responded with N/A.

HIRING CHALLENGES

The top five hiring barriers faced by departments are as follows:

1. Candidates do not respond to certifications/invitations to interview (78 % of departments, 32 of 41)
2. Small candidate pools (73% of departments, 30 of 41)
3. Hiring from a shared eligible list for a classification that is used by multiple departments (60% of departments, 25 of 41)
4. Time it takes to request a new civil service exam to when the eligible list is established (58% of departments, 24 of 41)
5. Uncompetitive salary/pay compared to other public/private organizations (53% of departments 22 of 41)

In addition to the aging workforce, the public sector struggles with slow recruitment practices. This is especially noted in department responses to a question in the Form, as 32 out of 41 departments reported candidates not responding to certifications or invitations to interview is their primary hiring barrier. This could be due to many reasons, but sluggish hiring is likely a leading factor (as candidates could have found another job, looked elsewhere, etc.).

A few departments also mentioned other recruitment and selection challenges they face, including: adapting and training staff to utilize new technology, such as a new human resources and payroll system, the Civil Service exams are not reflective of the work being done, a lack of advancement opportunities for a specific class, and the difficulty in filling positions with unique skills with non-exempt staff.

RECRUITMENT & RETENTION

When it comes to hiring, the Personnel department is actively engaging the local community through multiple job fairs with community agencies, colleges, and even high schools, as a way to cast the net into a wide, diverse pool of potential candidates and developing new pipelines of talent. In fact, the Personnel Department has partnered with the Public Works Bureaus in planning and hosting job fairs, with more events on the horizon as a result of its success. This also provides alternative ways to expedite the hiring process by providing an opportunity for on-site interviews for certain classifications, same day conditional job offers, and on-site fingerprinting and medical evaluations, just to name a few.

Social Media and technology is also actively being utilized through the use of QR codes, updated websites and email lists, updated branding, and posting on social media accounts, which is necessary to connect to the younger demographic according to several sources.<sup>3</sup>

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #1 : Prepare City departments and employees to conduct routine in-depth needs analyses for process improvement through an online training course provided by the Personnel Department, and expand targeted recruitment efforts for critical classifications

As the City continues to recover from the consequences of the Separation Incentive Program, early/normal retirements, and the COVID-19 pandemic, one point is certainly clear: there are vacancies to be filled, many of which are critical. In order to better prepare the future of the workforce and keep positions filled, it is essential that departments thoroughly map out processes to identify inefficiencies and implement process improvements (e.g., using Miro.com for digital process mapping), while also hiring well-rounded employees, maintaining a strong candidate pool particularly for the critical classifications, expediting recruitment, utilizing multiple hiring pathways, retaining new and current staff, and ensuring that accurate institutional knowledge is being shared for successful succession integration.

The Personnel Department is implementing the following solutions:

- Process Improvement Training Course. This is an ongoing project and more details will be provided once the training course is developed.
- Aspire to Hire. As stated in the 2022-2023 report, Aspire to Hire is an initiative to identify areas that can be expedited in the recruitment and hiring process, including ensuring exams are in place for critical classifications. This is ongoing, and the Personnel Department will inform departments as soon as more information is gathered on next steps.
- LA Local Hire Program. This includes Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs, which are both alternative options for filling vacancies for a few of the critical classifications mentioned, such as Accounting Clerk, Administrative Clerk, and Communications Information Representative. These programs are also continuously growing, and regularly consider other classifications that can be added. The LA Local Hire program has partnered with Spark Hire, an online platform that assists organizations in modernizing the hiring process by utilizing one-way video interviews. This platform will allow departments to review online, recorded interviews at their convenience and make selections quicker.
- LA Local Hire One-Day Hiring Events. The Personnel Department will be partnering with key departments who have a high vacancy rate in at least one of the classifications that are currently part of the LA Local Hire Programs to host one-day hiring events. During the one-day hiring events, candidates in the candidate pool will be randomly selected and invited to participate in interviews. Selected candidates will receive a same-day conditional job offer, complete the fingerprinting and medical review process on the same day immediately following their interview; thus completing all major hiring processes in one day. The goal is to fill all vacancies within the classification in one day.

Recommendation #1 (Cont'd)

- Career Pathways/LA Fellowship Program (CF #22-1156). The Personnel Department is partnering with the Economic Workforce and Development Department and other departments to create an alternative pathway for Management Assistant hiring, which is one of the critical classifications identified above. The program will include on-the-job training and will be supplemented by “City 101” classroom training to prepare participants for a successful career with the City (this is the same City 101 Training referenced in Recommendation #1). It is anticipated that Career Pathways/LA will commence in FY 2023-2024.
- Apprenticeship Programs. The Personnel Department is working with multiple City departments to implement several apprenticeship programs for classes which require in-depth training, education, and/or certification, and historically experience challenges in recruitment, selection, and retention. These classes include Equipment Mechanic, Helicopter Mechanic, Building Operating Engineer, and Electrician. The programs will provide apprentices the opportunity to gain the training needed to transition into civil service positions without needing prior experience to apply, and will also build another career pipeline for existing City employees.
- Workforce Equity Demonstration Project (WED). The Personnel Department is coordinating with the Public Works Bureaus and the Los Angeles Black Worker Center to recruit, hire, train, and mentor workers from disadvantaged populations, similar to the TLH and BRIDGE programs. WED provides participants with the experience needed to qualify for civil service opportunities, such as Refuse Collection Truck Operator, Assistant Environmental Compliance Inspector, and Wastewater Collection Worker. Since the first WED cohort commenced in Fall 2022, the program will continue to be evaluated in upcoming years.
- Part-Time/Exempt Hiring Pathway. The Personnel Department has partnered with American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) and Council 36/Service Employees International Union Local 721 (Local 721) to establish an alternative pathway into full-time civil service careers for existing long-term, part-time and/or exempt City employees in specific entry-level classifications such as Office Trainee and Vocational Worker. This alternative pathway provides long-term, part-time and/or exempt City employees on-the-job training which will prepare them to qualify for the existing parallel ‘Assistant’ classifications. Upon successful completion of the probationary period in one of the ‘Assistant’ classifications, employees will be offered a transfer via Charter Section 1014 from the ‘Assistant’ classification to the parallel targeted Civil Service classification. This part-time/exempt hiring pathway does not guarantee a full-time position for all part-time and/or exempt City employees, but rather an opportunity to participate in this alternative pathway should they meet the criteria and if the employing City department has the full-time position authority available and budget resources to hire the employee as a regular, civil service employee in one of the classifications represented by AFSCME or Local 721.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS

Regarding attrition, a few actions can be taken to help manage the loss of employees and institutional knowledge. As mentioned in the prior EWSR FY 2022-2023 form, a strong IT infrastructure, strong training programs (either provided by specific divisions or found through Cornerstone, such as the Professional Skills Catalog), knowledge transfer and a knowledge management system (department specific or utilizing the City's Knowledge Transfer Course), can help support departments during these transitional periods. It's also important to be proactive rather than reactive, and continuously train and consider Knowledge Transfer as part of daily tasks. Further information regarding Knowledge Transfer will be provided later in this report.

Along with continuous retirements, recruitment is more important now than ever. With recruitment comes the youngest of Millennials and oldest of Generation Z who are now entering the workforce in droves. As of 2022, the City matches the federal workforce figure that only 8.1% of the federal workforce was under the age of 30, which is in stark contrast to the 23% found in the private sector, therefore making it of utmost importance to make the City an attractive employer. This disparity highlights that the City needs to engage in a concerted effort to better attract younger workers to address the vacancy rate.

According to an article by Deloitte Insights, the "Great Resignation" was the shifting values of millions of individual workers. Employee wants, interests, and expectations have changed. Many employees either sought a new job or were applying to jobs that matched their values, including: flexibility, better compensation/work-life balance, entrepreneurial, focus on well-being, and work that makes a difference. Many of these changes have been met by the private sector, while many local governments have struggled to address these gaps. So what can be done?

This article shares the following ways to "level the playing field":

- 1. Providing more flexibility. This includes alternative work options such as working from home, flexible work schedules, non permanent workstations, among other arrangements. This also includes expanding the hiring pool to older workers. In fact, many retired individuals in their 60s and 70s said they'd be willing to return to work if they had more flexible schedules - which could prove helpful as a way to transfer knowledge and experience to new employees or promoted employees that take their place.
- 2. A welcome work environment. A workplace that emphasizes empathic and inclusive behaviors is an important aspect for many employees. With stress and burnout increasing after the pandemic (many times due to employees needing to do the work of many due to retirements and hiring freezes), it is valuable to ensure workers feel respected and heard.
- 3. Increasing compensation. This article shares that government wage is further behind than the private sector, and this negatively impacts new hire interest as well as retention, which aggravates the hiring challenges that the City is currently facing.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS (Cont'd)

- 4. Providing opportunities for growth and development. For many workers, particularly Millennials and Gen Z, continuous learning is an important aspect of job satisfaction. Offering opportunities to engage in different types of work in order to increase their skill level and improve novelty to their workplace. This can be done via rotation and offering employees to engage in projects they are interested in.
- 5. Well being and other non-traditional benefits. Many benefits are a “one size fits all”. Though compensation still seems to be the biggest factor, benefits can be a deciding factor between two jobs with similar compensation. Allowing choice can go a long way. Examples of these include flexible hours, stipends to cover transportation, improved or new mental health coverage, sabbaticals, pet-friendly accommodations, and/or tuition reimbursements, among many others. Allowing employees to choose “rewards” can increase commitment, interest, and fulfillment.
- 6. Being purposeful and impactful. In order to become attractive to the incoming workforce, government agencies need to improve their “brand”. This article suggests talking up the good work that is done in order to attract younger workers. An example given in the article spotlights the City of Denver, who launched a campaign called “Be a part of the city that you love” to foster a sense of pride in the individuals who worked for the government. This led to a 19% increase in applications.

A few more tips include:

- Be genuine and connect with the candidate. Though Generation Z tends to be more tech-focused, being timely in the hiring process, straightforward, and direct goes a long way.
- Listen to Gen Z and be open to their ideas. 45% of Gen Z workers shared being hesitant in working with baby boomers, which can be addressed by listening, engaging with their ideas, and providing constructive feedback.
- Prioritize diversity, inclusion, and equity
- Communicate the department’s values and mission

BEST PRACTICES (Cont'd)

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS (Cont'd)

Technology is also very important to the younger generation. According to the IPMA-HR State and Local Workforce Report of 2022, social media was the top recruitment method (59%) used by organizations. The City actively posts across multiple social media accounts and implements technology (such as QR codes) into many of their recruitment efforts and therefore is acclimating well to the new workforce.

When it comes to retaining current civil service employees, a survey by McKinsey & Company surveyed workers globally to understand what would make them stay, leave, or return to their jobs over the next three to six months. In this survey, civil servants reported that the top three reasons for staying in a current role were: compensation, meaningful work, and workplace flexibility.

Though compensation can not immediately be changed, the City must continue to be creative if it wants to retain their employees. Departments should consider evaluating how to implement one or a few of these tips or suggestions within their divisions in order to become more attractive to the incoming generation and protect themselves from future attrition. Providing different benefits also helps with attrition due to transfer opportunities, as they can provide competitive advantages for departments that wish to retain their employees.

If the City can continue to build purposeful work, provide opportunities for increased flexibility when able, connect with candidates, continue to develop ways to recruit more quickly, and provide a variety of benefits, we can work towards filling vacancies and creating a stronger City workforce.

C. LA LOCAL HIRE PROGRAMS

As part of the Mayor's larger initiative to create a more equitable workforce and restore City services, the Targeted Local Hire ("TLH") and Bridge to Jobs ("BRIDGE") program provides an alternative pathway for individuals who have generally faced significant barriers to employment to enter Civil Service. The TLH and BRIDGE programs have been successful in creating civil service job opportunities through the use of a non-traditional civil service examination consisting of on-the-job training ("OJT"). Since the launch of the programs, many City departments have participated and supported the programs and have achieved significant results from the program hires.

TARGETED LOCAL HIRE (TLH)

As of March 2023, a total of 1,686 individuals have been hired through the TLH Program into training programs that lead to one of the following civil service classifications:

- Administrative Clerk (1358)
- Animal Care Technician (4310)
- Animal License Canvasser (4330)
- Custodian (3156)
- Delivery Driver I (1121-1)
- Garage Attendant (3531)
- Gardener Caretaker (3141)
- Maintenance Laborer (3112)
- Street Services Worker I (4150-1)
- Tree Surgeon Assistant (3151)
- Warehouse and Toolroom Worker I (1832-1)

City departments anticipate filling an additional 392 positions through the TLH Program in FY 23-24. Estimates were submitted by City departments in March 2023; therefore, they do not reflect additional positions approved during the FY 23-24 budget.

Additionally, the City is working towards expanding TLH to include alternative pathways into the following classification:

- Mechanical Helper (3771)

BRIDGE TO JOBS (BRIDGE)

The City is also working towards expanding the alternative pathways into semi-skilled classifications through the BRIDGE Program. As of March 2023, a total of 152 individuals have been hired into the training program for either Accounting Clerk (1223), Communications Information Representative I (1461-1), Electrical Craft Helper (3799), Field Engineering Aide (7228), Community Services Representative (9053) or Inspector Trainee (4212). Additionally, the City is working towards expanding BRIDGE to include alternative pathways into the following classifications:

- Traffic Painter and Sign Poster (3421)
- Maintenance and Construction Helper (3115)
- Cement Finisher Worker (3353)

City departments anticipate filling an additional 174 positions through BRIDGE in FY 23-24. Estimates were submitted by City departments in March 2023; therefore, they do not reflect additional positions approved during the FY 23-24 budget.

City departments also recommended the following classifications for inclusion into either the TLH Program or the BRIDGE Program: Management Aide, Systems Aide, Project Assistant, Data Analyst, and Human Relations Advocate.

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #2: Continue to improve and expand the LA Local Hire Programs (Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs), including the development of a “City 101” training to assist employees with navigating the civil service promotional process, while also focusing on increasing utilization from City departments; thus, create additional opportunities for underserved and underrepresented communities.

Personnel Department staff will continue to analyze recommended classification(s) submitted by City departments in order to determine if the classification fits the parameters of the existing alternative pathways. The Personnel Department is working with the Economic Workforce and Development Department and other partners to develop a “City 101” training course which will cover topics such as City organization, procedures, Civil Service processes, and other areas which will prepare participants for a successful career with the City. Additionally, Personnel Department staff will expand outreach efforts and increase engagement of local residents by participating in more job fairs in partnership with various Council Offices and City departments. Participating in hiring events will give the Program an opportunity to increase brand awareness and reach potential applicants who lack resources and knowledge about the LA Local Hire Program career pathways. The Personnel Department will continue ongoing recruitment efforts and post job fair events on the Program website in order to increase applicants’ opportunities to obtain full-time employment with the City.

D. CONTACTLESS GOVERNMENT

As part of the City’s ongoing effort to improve customer service and public health, and in congruence with Mayor Garcetti’s Executive Directive 29: Contactless and People-Centered City Initiative, the City continues to provide services with a “contactless” option, meaning Angelenos are not required to visit a City’s public facility or counter in order to access services. The City approaches this work from a “people-centered” perspective, which means that accessing services should be quick, clear, and consistent in order to save the public and our partners’ time, frustration, and uncertainty.

2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”) collected information on the ongoing effort of City departments to digitize as many City processes as possible; thus the movement towards creating a “contactless government”.

For purposes of this report, “contactless government” refers to making critical services available online to allow for better customer service, preserve public health, improve equity, and expand Angelenos’ access to City government. In order to share the current work and effort from City departments to be adaptable and meet the growing workforce trends in “contactless government”, the Personnel Department is highlighting best practices and recommendations related to digitization as reported by City departments.

City departments reported a number of different services, operations, and procedures that have been digitized in order to create a contactless government.

90% of departments (37 of 41) reported that they provide online forms and utilize electronic request systems for constituents to use to request services and pay any outstanding fees; 85% of departments (35 of 41) reported that they provide virtual and digital customer service to the community through email, chat, virtual meetings, QR codes for digital check in and information sharing, and online documents; and 80% of departments (33 of 41) reported that they utilized cloud systems such as Google Drive and Microsoft Collaboration tools to share files with the public and to collaborate with coworkers on shared documents. One department noted that they are currently migrating all documents from a shared server to Google Drive. 78% of departments (32 of 41) reported that they utilize digital platforms to hold meetings, webinars, and provide a range of training programs and videos through platforms like Gyrus and Niche Academy. 39% of departments (16 of 41) reported that they conducted virtual project tracking, through programs such as Monday.com. 22% of departments (9 of 41) reported that they specifically utilize MyLA311 for the public to make requests to their department. One department reported utilizing Social Media to interact with the community and respond to any inquiries.

Some specific implementations that departments are utilizing include conducting virtual job interviews through SparkHire, Airtable and Asana to centralize workflow and collaborate digitally, QLess for virtual queues, and monitoring hotlines for public requests and complaints.

The Department of Cultural Affairs specifically uses Airtable and Asana and also uses Slideroom to review grants and responses to RFPs. Doing this reduces time and paper usage. The department has also moved to an online ticketing system, utilizing already established platforms like Eventbrite, and began implementing virtual tours of historic sites during the pandemic to increase accessibility. Finally, the department is moving towards using the City’s Universal Cashiering System for electronic permits.

61% of departments (25 out of 41) reported that they are currently working on making updates to their website; 56% (23 out of 41) reported that they are currently working on making fillable forms; 39% (16 of 41) reported that they are currently developing an online system for constituents to place orders, request appointments, and make requests for services; 24% (10 of 41) reported developing an online training platform; 22% (9 of 41) reported developing an online virtual orientation while another 22% (9 of 41) reported developing an online toolkit; 12% (5 of 41) reported developing a system specifically for their vendors to use, and 10% (4 of 41) reported working on a system to digitize sign language interpretation. Finally, one department reported that they are currently scanning documents and another noted that they are developing a digital mailing system.

Some additional digitization implementations that departments reported wanting to do include providing more success metrics on their website, utilizing ArcGIS and ArcMap to help the public locate offices, creating a universal cashiering business center, and making language more accessible through the use of platforms such as Monsido.

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS REDUCING PAPER-BASED DOCUMENTS/WORKFLOWS

In order to reduce paper based workflows and documents, 85% of departments (35 of 41) reported utilizing digital forms, folders and cloud systems; 73% (30 of 41) reported that they allow electronic signatures; 61% (25 of 41) reported that they provided laptops to their employees; 59% (24 of 41) reported utilizing files on a network drive while another 59% noted the use of Workday to eliminate paperwork; 29% (12 of 41) reported using an online toolkit and 27% (11 of 41) reported the use of a virtual orientation; 15% (6 of 41) reported the use of a vendor system to limit paper use; and 12% (5 of 41) reported that they are currently paperless.

Some departments highlighted the use of ViaTron to have all of their physical documents digitized into a shared drive or cloud based drive. In addition, the remote Evaluation Management System (EMS) was highlighted as a means to allow interview raters complete and submit candidate evaluations online. Finally, the integration of Workday and PERKS has provided a repository for digital records that have previously been kept in hard copy.

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #3: Collaborate with ITA to develop a digital toolkit of resources and experts to guide departments with implementing methods of “contactless” government that suit their needs, making sure to provide resources for online privacy/security and maintaining options to address technology gaps and the digital divide that may exist among constituents and various communities.

Demand for digital and contactless services has grown by 20% in the U.S., according to the consulting firm McKinsey, and the City of Los Angeles has responded by drastically increasing digitization. PwC found that before the pandemic, 63% of business leaders had concerns regarding maintaining productivity while employees work from home, but that concern dropped to 26% in recent months. Increased emphasis must be placed on redesigning systems and processes that were meant solely for work in the office, such as performance management, supervision, teaming, etc. Organizations must leverage the benefits of AI to address these needs. Part of this effort includes addressing the technology gap that many low income communities that lack internet access face. As the City moves to more contactless services, budgets must provide funds that provide greater access to technology, while simultaneously strengthening privacy and security.<sup>4</sup>

The Personnel Department recommends that departments continue to review their procedures and seek to digitize as many processes as possible to increase contactless services and operations for the benefit of the public, partners, and staff. Undoubtedly, many of these processes have improved department efficiency and overall satisfaction from staff, partners and the public alike. For example, many government bodies across the country have found that moving public meetings online has increased convenience and citizen interaction. However, as the City moves toward more online services, it is essential to maintain options that address technology gaps and the digital divide, even as more and more individuals choose online services over traditional means. Nonetheless, the City must continue to prioritize online privacy and security, and budget for growing technological needs. In order to aid departments in this process, Personnel can collaborate with ITA to develop a digital toolkit of resources and experts that can serve as a central hub for departments aiming to make more of their processes and services “contactless,” making sure to maintain a high level of security integrity. Departments can work with IT liaisons to determine what the best steps to take are based on their needs. IT liaisons and experts can provide departments with recommendations for resources and software that would best suit their services and customers. This would help alleviate the anxiety and uncertainty associated with the endless software options on the market. Implementing this recommendation would require additional funding, however, it is expected that departments would save funds by investing in more cost-efficient software that improve their services and operations.

In the long term, the City of Los Angeles should aim to move beyond contactless services. Trends show that there is growing need and benefit to providing proactive service delivery. This includes providing automatic delivery of benefits and services without requiring constituents to apply for them.

E. KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER

As discussed earlier, many individuals are retiring or preparing to retire due to the aging workforce. Though this is being experienced throughout all job sectors, the public sector will likely experience this more intensely due to the fact that public sector employees, particularly government workers, tend to be older and have a longer tenure than their private sector counterparts. Therefore it is of utmost importance to ensure that retiring employees are sharing and passing on their knowledge to their staff in order to prevent disruptions to services provided to Los Angeles.

Knowledge transfer is a process in which experts share their knowledge and expertise with their peers. Without a proper knowledge transfer system, organizations face potential risks such as the loss of unique knowledge held by retiring employees or turnover, safety incidents, errors due to insufficient knowledge, slower integration, reworking, and more. If a proper system is in place, organizations can prevent employees from learning the wrong skill, minimize mistakes, avoid overwhelming staff through streamlined training, and improve efficiency.<sup>5</sup>

Knowledge Transfer includes both explicit and tacit knowledge. Explicit knowledge is information that can more easily be transferred through written words such as manuals, aids, policies and procedures. Tacit knowledge is knowledge that is more difficult to transfer, sometimes referred to as “know how”, “know why”, and “know when”. This includes more intuitive knowledge, experiences, and skills gained over time, and is acquired through practice, context, and experience. As mentioned in the City’s Knowledge Transfer training, the key concern is to ensure that critical, high priority transfer of knowledge happens faster, with less uncertainty and with greater predictability and consistency. As explicit knowledge is already written and shared, we must find ways to pass tacit knowledge down to current and incoming employees, as tacit knowledge is also necessary in order to fully understand explicit knowledge.<sup>6,7</sup>

TOP KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER METHODS USED BY CITY DEPARTMENTS.

The FY 2023-2024 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”) asked departments to provide information regarding their knowledge transfer methods that they find effective for seamless transfer of assignments and responsibilities.

Approximately 83% of departments responded with “Data saved to accessible drive” and On-the-Job Training (34 of 41) as the top method(s) for knowledge transfer. This was closely followed by “Mentorship program”, mentioned by 78% of departments (32 of 41), “Standard policies and procedures” mentioned by 76% of departments (31 of 41), and training opportunities/events/orientations, mentioned by 73% of departments (30 of 41).

There are a variety of ways knowledge can be captured and transferred, including, but not limited to: manuals, online training, cross-training, 120-day retiree appointments, among others. Departments were asked about 16 different knowledge capture and transfer methods, and requested they identify methods they currently use for Office and Field employees as well as the effectiveness of each method.

TOP KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER METHODS USED BY CITY DEPARTMENTS. (Cont'd)

This table summarizes the top 5 methods currently used by City departments to transfer assignments and responsibilities for both Office and Field employees and how many departments consider them “good” or “very effective”.

OFFICE EMPLOYEES	# OF DEPTS	FIELD EMPLOYEES	# OF DEPTS
Online Training	39	Meetings to share Info/ Best practices	25

INSTITUTIONALIZING KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER METHODS

When asked to elaborate on how the effectiveness of these were measured, and how the Department is institutionalizing these methods as part of regular duties and operations to ensure that these methods are being carried out and utilized, most departments provided detailed responses. However, a few that stand out are as follows:

- The Department of Neighborhood Empowerment shares that training opportunities are always available for any staff member looking to increase their knowledge. They state that this training also creates “backups” for each office responsibility. They also report they utilize cross-training, mentorship, and standard policies and procedures to help develop backup staff in each role.
- The Public Works Bureau of Street Lighting shares they contracted with Franklin & Covey for employee training on various topics in order to equip and train employees, new supervisors, and promote employee advancement. For Engineering staff, there are regularly scheduled training sessions on technical subjects. The Bureau also provides a rotation program for Engineering Associates and encourages them to transfer within the Bureau to promote cross-training and learn various aspects of Street Lighting Work in order to be more well-rounded and ready for promotional opportunities.
- The City Clerk shares that for their Neighborhood Business Improvement Division, process maps are shared with staff for review and edits in an effort to capture improvements, which are then shared with incoming staff. Staff is encouraged to record live demonstrations to show a process in action, and attendees are encouraged to ask questions and suggest process improvements, if applicable.

INSTITUTIONALIZING KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER METHODS (Cont'd)

- The Office of the City Administrative Officer provides an annual training program, centralized electronic training and reference materials including recordings of past training, a job rotation program, cross-training, and has designated back-ups for positions. They also employ retired Charter Section 1164(b) employees whose focus is Knowledge Transfer.
- The Planning Department shares that their knowledge transfer methods were developed based on best practices or feedback from staff through voluntary surveys after training. This feedback shapes their future training and methods and is passed down from supervisor to supervisor to institutionalize knowledge transfer training.
- The Public Works Bureau of Sanitation shares among other things, they have a mentorship coordinator that trains new mentors in house, with a focus on Environmental Engineering Associates. This mentorship includes mentors advising mentees on passing a required exam, individual meetings and confidential, networking, etc. Mentees are given the opportunity to evaluate their Mentor at mid-point and end of program to identify gaps in mentoring skills and assess future opportunities to improve the program. An additional mentorship program is in process for Administrative Services Personnel. They also have a General Training Section in the Industrial Safety and Compliance Division that coordinates training with each of their 24 Division Training Coordinators.
- The City Tourism Department keeps an updated assignment list with back-up liaisons. The back-up individuals are immersed in the task and activity to provide seamless knowledge transfer. An example they provide is when they hired a Management Assistant in 2019 to allow for a transfer of knowledge from the Management Assistant who was going to retire in 2020.

CITY'S KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER COURSE

According to the City's Knowledge Transfer Course, specifically the Knowledge Transfer Methods Worksheet, there are a variety of methods and strategies that can be used to collect and capture knowledge. The resource material from the course can be found on Cornerstone and the Workforce Planning website. By identifying, collecting, and "storing" knowledge, we can improve the department's long-term resilience with maintaining and cultivating the City's workforce talent. Though certain knowledge is best shared in a specific way (i.e. desk manuals used for sharing step-by-step instructions) it's also important to consider specific employees' preferred learning style and ways to integrate that into learning. Referencing the City's knowledge transfer training, the examples of learning styles are Read (reading documentation), Show (watching someone do the work), Talk (discussing best practices and explaining how something is done), and Do (trying the work yourself).

Interestingly, the Form asked departments whether they were currently utilizing the Online Training Course, A City of Los Angeles Training Course - Knowledge Transfer, created by the Personnel Department with funding by the Innovation and Performance Commission. This training was created and made available to departments in October 2020 and was created in response to the FY 20-21 Knowledge Transfer study.

CITY'S KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER COURSE (Cont'd)

However, the responses from these questions indicate that approximately 19% of departments (8 of 41) currently utilize this training for Office Employees, and approximately 9% (4 of 41) for Field employees. 66% of departments (27 of 41) for Office employees indicated "Interested, Not implemented", with approximately 41% of departments (17 of 41) choosing "Interested, Not Implemented" for field employees. Lastly, 39% of departments (16 of 41) reported that this is "Not Applicable" for Field Employees.

OTHER KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER METHODS

Departments were asked to share if they utilized other knowledge capture and transfer methods that differ from the sixteen (16) that were listed. 80% of departments responded with "N/A" (33 of 41).

A few departments provided additional information:

- The General Services Department's Custodial Services compiles historical emails documenting a resolution to an issue or where the responsibility lies with specific tasks. They share this is important when and where there is a change in management, as the new management must learn the process/procedures of their new division.
- The Department of Transportation shares that they have a succession planning google form that they review with staff who are leaving the department. They try to transcribe as many processes and procedures as able.
- The Public Works Bureau of Street Services shares that they administer the Street Maintenance Technology Program, a college-accredited training program in partnership with the Los Angeles Trade Technical College, which helps prepare StreetsLA employees and other students for careers in public works street maintenance operations and leadership.

ORGANIZATION OF INFORMATION/RESOURCES

Departments were also asked how they organize information and resources, which helps in the seamless transfer of assignments and responsibilities. The top 5 methods used to organize this information is through the use of Google Drive and Google Apps (34 of 41), on the job training (33 of 41) and Staff Meetings (32 of 41), Training, (30 of 41), Email (29 of 41) and Manuals (29 of 41). An example is as follows:

- The Community Investment for Families Department shares three methods to capture and transfer job knowledge. The first method is job training, where supervisors train and develop subordinate staff on their current job duties as well as the supervisor's duties as part of the department's succession planning process. The second method involves periodic staff reassignment, and the third method involves preparing and maintaining updated job descriptions and job manuals for certain job classifications.

ACCESSIBILITY OF INFORMATION

Departments were asked how they ensure that the most up to date information is consistently accessible when it comes to job assignments and responsibilities. The top method showed that approximately 83% of departments used communicating with their staff virtually, in person, or phone calls (34 of 41) as their way of ensuring information was accessible. This was followed by 66% of departments (27 of 41) stating Email, 63% of departments (26 of 41) stating Training, 63% of departments stating Position descriptions (26 of 41), and 53% of departments (22 of 41) stating the Personnel website.

- The Public Works Bureau of Street Services hires candidates from the Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs programs to promote on-the-job training for entry level positions. Divisions also provide cross-training, mentoring, job shadowing, and job rotations. Street Services also utilizes tenured or retired City employees to serve as instructors for its Street Maintenance Technology Program classes to train students for careers in street maintenance operations and leadership.

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #4: Implement an ongoing, continuous, and proactive Knowledge Transfer Strategy, including expanding the use of the City’s Knowledge Transfer Course through an intentional partnership with department management and encouraging sharing of knowledge/best practices across City departments.

Knowledge Transfer and Management is identifying, capturing, and sharing knowledge that helps an organization succeed and survive wherever there is turnover, retirements, and loss of employees with institutional knowledge. As was recommended in the 2019 EWSR report and the FY 2022-2023 EWSR report, it is of vital importance that Knowledge Transfer and Management is integrated as part of an employee’s everyday tasks and as part of their organization’s culture, in order to be proactive when there are changes in staff. This will also better prepare current staff for training incoming staff on learning processes and procedures in a more organized and efficient way.

Compared to last year’s survey, only one additional department is utilizing the City’s Knowledge Transfer Course (8 departments compared to last year’s 7), even though 32 departments expressed an interest in the 2019 EWSR report. Furthermore, data collected showed that only 4 departments utilized this training for Field employees, compared to the 8 departments for Office employees.

It is important to note that this training, and Knowledge Transfer in general, is meant for everyone. Data from this form indicates that 3 of 41 departments believe this training is not applicable to Office employees, while 16 of 41 departments believe it is not applicable to Field Employees.

It is essential for all departments to utilize a knowledge transfer system (whether it is the City created one or not) regardless of the type of work the employee may do as everyone can benefit. The City’s Knowledge Transfer Course ( resource material can be found on Cornerstone and the Workforce Planning website shares an example of how this can work for a field employee. The mentioned strategy is a Demonstration/Video, and the example of the successful use of this method is “A group of street services workers at X department watch a video of an employee using the proper tools and safety precautions to perform curb cuts”.

It is recommended that the Personnel Department follow up with departments - especially those that indicated they are interested in the training but have not yet implemented it - to make sure staff is aware of the training and support departments in encouraging staff to take the training course.

According to an article by Steve Trautman<sup>8</sup>, whose research influenced the City Knowledge Transfer training, having a knowledge transfer process as part of the regular, day-to-day workforce culture will provide a much smoother experience when employees transition into new roles.

<sup>8</sup> <https://stevetrautman.com/blog/knowledge-transfer-in-your-workplace-12-transitions-made-easier-for-employees-today-and-tomorrow/>

BEST PRACTICES (Cont'd)

Recommendation #4 (Cont'd)

Folding in knowledge transfer assignments into regular duties provides employees with knowledge on current tasks, ensures the required skills that need to be passed down are being learned in a timely manner, measures an employees skill set consistently, and provides support if needed. This can also assist with transitions being less of a confusing and stressful time for all employees, as knowledge was being consistently transferred and captured preemptively.

Transitions aren't only tied to retirements, other types of transitions include technology rollouts (such as the Workday implementation - the initial employees who learn this will share these new skills with the rest of the employees), reorganization of teams, promotions and resignations, rapid growth and hiring, etc. According to Trautman, transitions do not have to be a stressful or frustrating experience if it is well thought out and if the KT process is integrated into the work culture.<sup>8</sup>

A few suggestions on how to incorporate this into day to day more examples can be found in the City's Knowledge Transfer course.

- Create a supporting learning environment, encourage new ideas and sharing amongst the team
- Encourage knowledge sharing among the team, such consider what needs to be prioritized
- Ensure all employees have their "Air, Food, and Water" (meaning foundational tools, resources, access, and general information to survive in their roles)
- When training, focus on the most critical information that needs to be shared first. "What is the least amount of information necessary to make sure they succeed at this task?"
- Have employees write out a list of regular, ongoing duties along with their timelines
- Maintain and update instructions for complex or division-specific processes.
- Consider utilizing the "5 Minute Meeting Agenda" when teaching a new skill

You may find more information in the Knowledge Transfer Training.

The Personnel department encourages that all employees engage in a consistent Knowledge Transfer process. There are numerous approaches to Knowledge Transfer, including utilizing the City's Knowledge Transfer Course and those systems in place with many departments, and it is recommended that these be used intentionally and consistently. A few suggestions on how to start this are participating in and providing mentorship programs, coaching, short structured meetings, a recorded demonstration showcasing a specific skill set, and many others.

Last but not certainly not least, it Important to remember to recognize and reward employees who share knowledge with others! This can include writing about their assistance in a performance review or commendation, acknowledging their work in a meeting or with the team, offering a small gift, or even a simple thank you - celebrating success and assistance is always appreciated.

F. DIVERSITY, EQUITY, AND INCLUSION IN THE WORKPLACE

In today's social climate, many employers are looking to increase diversity, equity, and inclusion in the workplace. These efforts tend to fall in line with the social expectations of the geographic areas and industries in which they operate, as there has been a steady increase in social awareness surrounding diversity and equality. While employers are making efforts to increase diversity, equity, and inclusion, the question of the purpose of these efforts is brought forth. In their article for the Harvard Business Review, Lily Zheng outlines focal points for effective DEI efforts, stating to “identify DEI challenges before prescribing DEI solutions” and “measure not only inputs, but outcomes”.<sup>9</sup> If the goal of these efforts is to create a stronger, more diverse and welcoming workforce for the long term, then the outcomes of DEI initiatives must be tracked and analyzed to ensure that the goals are substantially met instead of superficially appearing to meet goals.

In their HR 20/20 Report, the International Public Management Association for Human Resources (IPMA-HR) notes that “traditionally HR has been concerned with making sure everyone is treated the same even though that means that one group may be advantaged more than another by a program, policy, or practice”.<sup>10</sup>

Additionally, IPMA-HR points out that “true diversity also includes communities of people that are not traditionally considered protected classes but who bring different perspectives to the organization”<sup>11</sup>, and also states that “inclusion takes intentional effort to ensure all people have a sense of belonging in the workplace”.<sup>12</sup> This further supports the idea that the outcomes of DEI initiatives must be regularly tracked and analyzed to make sure that the efforts being made will lead towards long-term, sustainable change.

The City of Los Angeles, as an employer, is committed to increasing diversity, equity, and inclusion in the workplace in a substantial, measurable way. Diversity can be defined as the representation of different groups in the workplace. Equity is the fair treatment of all, with consideration for each person's circumstances rather than a “one-size fits all” approach. Inclusion in the workplace is how those in the workforce experience their workplace, and how they are able to contribute in a meaningful way.<sup>13</sup>

On June 19, 2020, Mayor Eric Garcetti signed Executive Directive No. 27: Racial Equity in City Government in support of “ongoing efforts to ensure fairness, diversity, equal opportunity, and transparency in City government.” In order to track DEI efforts being made within the City of Los Angeles, City Departments were surveyed through the yearly Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration (EWSR) plan. The EWSR plans from forty-one City Departments were analyzed to determine what efforts are currently being made toward achieving the goal of creating a more diverse and inclusive workplace. City Departments were asked to provide the tangible goals that they set surrounding diversity, equity, and inclusion.

F. DIVERSITY, EQUITY, AND INCLUSION IN THE WORKPLACE (Cont'd)

When asked about tangible goals across all City Departments surrounding DEI, 85% of City Departments responded that they utilize the Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs programs (35 of 41), 68% reported using targeted recruitment efforts (28 of 41), 66% of Departments track and report gender and ethnicity data (27 of 41), 61% of departments say they are fostering a culture that promotes DEI (25 of 41), and 61% of departments state that managers are made up individuals of diverse backgrounds (25 of 41). Managers and leaders were identified as those who are most commonly responsible for making sure each Department's DEI goals were being met.

DIVERSITY

The most widespread practices utilized in ensuring diversity at all classification levels in the City of Los Angeles is demonstrating DEI with 22% of departments reporting (9 of 41), 17% of departments creating diverse interview panels (7 of 41), 19% of departments training employees (8 of 41), and 14% of departments hiring through the Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs Programs, which target underserved communities that have traditionally faced employment barriers (6 of 41). Additionally, many departments indicated that they are welcoming to all individuals from diverse backgrounds and identities. Departments champion diversity of ideas through many different practices, with the most common including open door policies or one-on-one's with management being utilized by 28% of departments (11 of 41), 22% of departments modeling behavior by upper management (9 of 41), 17% utilizing online platforms to exchange ideas (7 of 41), and 14% creating diverse committees by including a variety of individuals from different divisions and levels of the City (6 of 41). 95% of City Departments (39 of 41) believe they are absolutely committed to supporting a diverse workforce through a variety of practices.

EQUITY

City Departments were surveyed on what practices they use to ensure equitable access to a variety of opportunities and resources for all employees. In order to ensure equitable access to career advancement opportunities for all employees, 80% of City Departments utilize email notifications (33 of 41), 71% use performance evaluations (29 of 41), and 68% announce vacancies and job postings at staff meetings (28 of 41). 68% of City Departments (28 of 41) will also inform employees on, and encourage them to compete in, the competitive Civil Service exam process whenever opportunities are available. A follow up question about the employee evaluation process shows that 85% of Departments use probationary evaluations (25 of 29), 73% use informal check-ins (21 of 29), and 71% conduct annual evaluations (20 of 29). In order to effectively score evaluations, Departments train their supervisors using methods such as the CORE Supervisory Training, pre-recorded trainings, and assistance from other supervisors or Personnel staff. Lastly, in order to ensure that worksites and resources are available to all individuals, including those with mental or physical disabilities, 85% of City Departments indicated the utilization of reasonable accommodations (35 of 41), 73% adhere to ADA policies (30 of 41), and 71% use the Personnel Department's Office of Workplace Equity website (29 of 41).

INCLUSION

The final area of focus that City Departments were surveyed on is the ongoing efforts being made towards a more inclusive workplace. Of the surveyed Departments, 93% believe they are absolutely committed to fostering an experience of inclusion and belonging for all employees. When asked how they are actively working towards creating a safe and supportive workplace for all, 83% of Departments (34 of 41) indicated they used empathy and listening from leadership and trainings such as Equal Employment Opportunity, 80% (33 of 41) use flexible scheduling and/or work environments, and 78% (32 of 41) of Departments provide reasonable accommodations and inform employees of resources such as MyVoiceLA. When asked what is being done to foster a sense of inclusion among employees, the most common responses included using online meetings, in-person meetings, and opportunities for cross-training or new projects. The top responses Departments provided when asked what they are doing to foster engagement within their departments remained as online and in-person meetings. Other common responses included hosting social events, providing a comfortable workspace, and showcasing highlights of Department initiatives or employees.

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #5: Explore implementing all practices of diversity, equity and inclusion (“DEI”), seek to establish and utilize committees focused on DEI to address the unique challenges that departments face, and increase outreach to underrepresented populations.

Through the EWSR form, City Departments were able to elaborate on some of their responses to certain questions asked in the form. While each Department has its own unique scope and set of challenges, common applications of DEI efforts included adhering to Racial Equity plans, performing specialized outreach, and utilizing either the Targeted Local Hire or Bridge to Jobs programs. Many City Departments highlighted the diversity on their interview panels and management as part of their efforts towards achieving their diversity goals. Some departments, such as the Zoo, provide on-going training on inclusivity, LGBTQIA+ and intersectionality, as well as administering evaluations in both English and Spanish. The CAO has their Equity, Performance Management, and Innovation Group to incorporate equity measures into City services including budgeting and capital planning. Other departments, such as the Information Technology Agency and the Public Works Board perform targeted recruitment through actions such as the development of recruitment videos in conjunction with groups such as City View channel 35, as well as going to recruit in person at historically black colleges and universities and other minority colleges.

Outside of the City of Los Angeles, organizations are working towards increasing DEI initiatives through a combination of best practices and unique solutions. For example, the City of San Francisco has implemented “de-identification”, which is where their Department of Human Resources “removes names, addresses, and schools attended from permanent civil service applications, to reduce implicit bias impacts in the interview selection process, thereby providing greater opportunity for those who may have been unfairly screened out in the past”.<sup>14</sup> Additionally, the City of New York has created their 55-a Program, where a “qualified person with a disability who is hired under the 55-a Program is not required to take a competitive examination”.<sup>15</sup>

G. TELECOMMUTING

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the City adopted and implemented an emergency telecommuting policy in order to maintain continuity of services, operations and procedures during the pandemic. On February 28, 2023, Governor Gavin Newsom terminated the state’s COVID-19 State of Emergency for COVID-19. Departments still have the option of implementing their own telecommuting policy, and the Personnel Department expects to release guidelines for a permanent City-wide telecommuting policy in the near future.

Departments have reported a variety of positive outcomes from telecommuting, ranging from increased productivity and efficiency to improved employee morale. 2023-24 Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form (“Form”), 92% of departments (36 of 39) reported that they plan to continue the use of such a telecommuting program post COVID-19, 5% of departments (2 of 39) reported that they are unsure at this time, and 3% of departments (1 of 39) reported that they will not continue use of a telecommuting program due to a majority of workforce duties requiring employees in the field or office. The departments that are currently unsure of continuing a telecommuting program reported that this is because they are either awaiting approval of the City-wide telecommuting policy or are awaiting management approval.

CONTINUED TELECOMMUTING

NO. OF DEPARTMENTS PLANNING TO CONTINUE TELECOMMUTING POST COVID-19

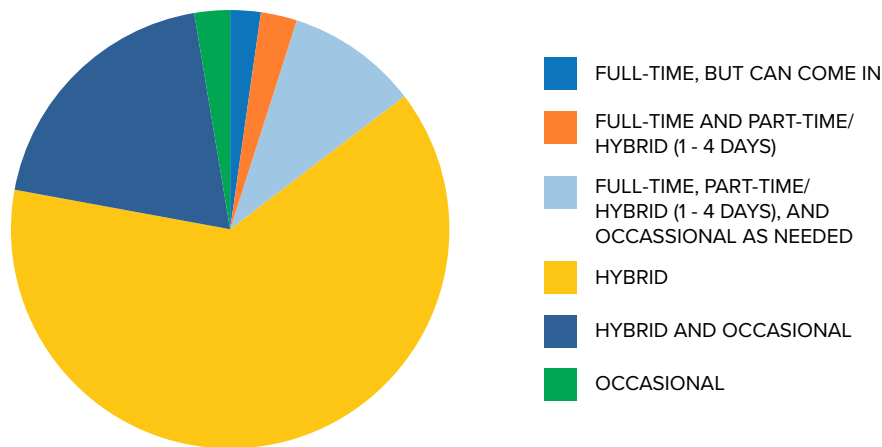

In this year’s “Form”, 93% of departments (38 of 41) again reported that they will continue some type of telecommuting post COVID-19, while 7% of departments (3 of 41) reported that they are currently unsure if they will or not. Of those that are unsure, one department noted that they are awaiting the City-wide telecommuting policy to be published. Another department noted that the final policy is subject to approval from their General Manager, however, most employees in the department are not able to carry out work remotely. The third department that reported being unsure of continuing a telecommuting policy post COVID-19 noted that they must continue to evaluate and assess what work arrangements maintain the safest environment when serving their clients.

TYPES OF TELECOMMUTING POLICIES

One example of a current telecommuting policy was provided by the CAO. The CAO’s telecommuting policy requires CAO staff to be in the office two days per week and provides the opportunity to telecommute for the remaining three weekdays. Exceptions are granted to the policy to allow only one day of in-office work to the extent possible and based on employee need. Telecommuting and in-office days can be “swapped” within the same calendar week with approval of the supervisor to allow maximum flexibility for staff. Some staff choose to come into the office more frequently than the required minimum days, and staff may be required to come in more frequently if they have an in-person meeting (e.g., City Council) that requires their presence. Only two CAO employees, the Office’s receptionist and back-up, are not currently eligible to telecommute due to the nature of their work responsibilities.

TYPE OF TELECOMMUTING POLICY OFFERED

A vast majority of departments are currently offering some form of hybrid telecommuting policy. 63% (26 of 41) reported that they offer a hybrid telecommuting schedule in which employees may telecommute one to four days each week. An additional 20% of departments (8 of 41) reported that they also offer a hybrid telecommuting schedule while also offering occasional telecommuting in which employees can telecommute on a case by case basis. An additional 10% of departments (4 of 41) offer hybrid and occasional telecommuting schedules, as well as full time schedules. One department offers just full time telecommuting schedules, another offers just occasional schedules, and a third department offers both full time and hybrid telecommuting schedules.

PERSONNEL DEPARTMENT TELECOMMUTING SURVEY

The Personnel Department administered a survey to its Division Chiefs in February 2023 and found that 51% of its employees (225 of 442) reported that given the choice, they would prefer a 100% remote work schedule. 19% (82 of 442) reported that they would prefer 1 day a week in the office, 12% (54 of 442) reported that they would prefer 2 days a week in the office, 5% (24 of 442) reported that they would prefer 3 days a week in the office, another 5% reported that they would prefer full time in the office, 3% (13 of 442) reported that they would prefer 4 days in the office, and 4.5% (20 of 442) did not make a preference selection. In addition, 68% of respondents (300 of 442) felt that they were more productive working remotely than in the office, while only 7% (32 of 442) felt that they were more productive in the office.

Findings also suggested that since telecommuting began, communication with supervisors has largely stayed the same or increased. In addition, 90% of respondents stated productivity has either increased or stayed the same, 49% indicated that work-related stress has decreased, and 43% indicated that non-work related stress has decreased. Overall, two-thirds or more of all respondents reported that work-life balance is better, they are less stressed, their health and wellness has improved, and that they can successfully complete their regular work duties from home. Concurrently, 94% of supervisors affirmed that their team's productivity has either increased or stayed the same, and over 93% reported that their staff adjusted well to working from home and continues to produce quality work.

BEST PRACTICES/RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendation #6: Offer permanent flexible options of telecommuting (full-time, hybrid, occasional) to all eligible employees where possible, while implementing methods to maintain engagement, collaboration and communication. See Personnel Department guides for tips and resources.

The Personnel Department recommends that departments continue to provide flexible options for telecommuting to all eligible employees where possible. Departments should continue to utilize the agreements, materials and guidelines for the Emergency COVID-19 Telecommuting Process provided on the Personnel Department website until a citywide policy is available. Once a citywide policy is available, departments should seek to establish their own departmental policy to meet their unique operational and organizational needs.

Reports show that a major obstacle towards telecommuting is managerial resistance. A report on telework in Los Angeles County conducted by the Mineta Transportation Institute found that “executives saw the benefits of using flexible work to their advantage as a negotiating tool for recruitment, promotion, retention and motivation, but they often worried about the costs of training and potential culture change.” Some of this concern includes creating “inequitable outcomes in the workplace, and possibly negatively impact morale.” However, even before the COVID-19 Pandemic, organizations were reporting “greater productivity, lower costs, more options for finding and retaining qualified staff, and improved employee health” from telecommuting. Greater productivity has resulted from a combination of less time spent commuting, more energy due to higher morale/less stress/better health/more sleep, efficiencies resulting from online meetings, empowerment through autonomous work, and more. Research found that in 2021, productivity did not drop among Federal employees that were telecommuting. These studies also showed that it is essential to evaluate employee performance based on quality of work, not time spent in the office.<sup>16</sup> One study showed that 77% of remote workers were more productive working from home than in the office and tended to produce more innovation.<sup>17</sup>

Cost savings related to office materials, resources, and vehicle expenses/rising gas prices are another major benefit for both employers and employees. The Office of Personnel Management found that federal agencies saved over $180 million due to telecommuting in 2020.<sup>18</sup> In California alone, taxpayers saved $22.5 million due to relinquished office leases, with that number expected to increase to $85 million in the next few years. In addition, one study showed that employees themselves can save up to $11,000 annually on expenses normally spent on transportation, meals, and attire. Providing telecommuting is an alternative way to offer more money to employees in the place of increased salaries. Aside from this, telecommuting has drastically reduced California’s carbon footprint<sup>19</sup>, and for every 50 million people that telecommute, 95,000 traffic injuries and deaths are prevented every year, which saves over $11 billion.

Recommendation #5 (Cont'd)

Additionally, telecommuting addresses concerns over diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI). Telecommuting allows for a greater diversity of employees and removes obstacles for those that are low income or those that have disabilities such as lack of access to transportation and resources. Those with neurodiverse conditions may require equipment that they have at home, and telework provides an avenue to accommodate these qualified employees. This allows organizations to employ exceptional, passionate and dedicated individuals from anywhere in the world that are otherwise limited in finding employment. By removing barriers, organizations will strengthen their workforce.<sup>20</sup>

Most importantly, employees have reported improved physical and mental health outcomes due to telecommuting. Offering telecommuting also has shown to improve employee retention, provides for a greater pool of applicants for employers, and is an essential tool to attract high level employees in a competitive landscape. This is particularly important given the fact that “24% of all jobs in the US and Canada are now permanent remote roles” and this number is only expected to grow. In addition, it is essential that organizations provide strong IT infrastructures in order to buoy managers that are not fluent in IT skills. Given these circumstances, organizations saw recruitment and retention improve between 2019 and 2022.<sup>21</sup>

There is also the concern that expanding telecommuting will result in a loss of social capital in the workplace and will negatively impact training. There are ways to address these concerns, however. One such method is “Virtual Coworking” in which small teams join an online meeting together while working on their own tasks. This can facilitate real time discussions, feedback, and build social capital. This can be used in collaboration with “Virtual Watercoolers” in which teams establish a channel for personal/nonwork discussions, initiated by questions of the day or discussion points. It is essential that teams set regular time to improve communication, ensure there is adequate coordination, and ensure that all team members are being included. Teams should set times to meet in person to maintain a strong social capital. Teams should also explore different options for maintaining creative spaces for brainstorming, which likely includes requiring time in the office for everyone to meet in person. It is also important, however, that for some employees, quiet time in one’s own space is the best way to facilitate creativity and productivity. Requiring these employees to return to the office at full-time levels risks reducing their productivity, morale, and could harm retention and recruitment. Concurrently, the opposite can be true, in which some employees require time in the office in order to focus and be more productive. It is essential to provide options that are as flexible as possible for all the varying preferences among staff. In addition, since not all employees are able to telecommute, it is essential to provide managerial support to bolster and motivate those that are required to work in the office regularly. Finally, establishing a regular telecommuting policy will prepare departments for any future local or global disruptions to work.

V. CONCLUSION

While the City continues to experience the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, including the 2020 hiring freeze, SIP, and smaller candidate pools across civil service exams, the increasing demand for City operations and services as we return to the “new normal” means that the City needs to meet the moment to address the issues concerning recruitment, selection, retention, attrition, and changes to the organization, operations, and workforce. The recommendations and best practices that were highlighted in this report can provide insights for departments as they strategize on the best approaches to address these matters.

Please see the table below which summarizes our recommendations:

RECOMMENDATION	EXAMPLES/BEST PRACTICES
Recommendation #1 :  Prepare City departments and employees to conduct routine in-depth needs analyses for process improvement through an online training course provided by the Personnel Department, and expand targeted recruitment efforts for critical classifications	Use Miro.com or a similar process mapping platform to identify and address inefficiencies in processes; Utilize LA Local Hire and other alternative employment programs; Focus recruitment efforts on target groups, including Generation Z.
Recommendation #2:  Continue to improve and expand the LA Local Hire Programs (Targeted Local Hire and Bridge to Jobs), including the development of a "City 101" training to assist employees with navigating the civil service promotional process, while also focusing on increasing utilization from City departments; thus, create additional opportunities for underserved and underrepresented communities.	Make recommendations to Personnel regarding classifications that fit the parameters of LA Local Hire programs.

2023-2024 EQUITABLE WORKFORCE AND SERVICE RESTORATION FORM

Introduction:

The Mayor's Executive Directive No. 15 \("ED-15"\) issued on April 28, 2016, instructed each General Manager or Head of Department/Office to prepare an Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Plan ("Plan") to address front-line services, succession planning, and technology needs. In addition, ED15 directed that these Plans be updated annually.

In an effort to simplify the process, the Office of the Mayor and Personnel Department have developed the following Equitable Workforce and Service Restoration Form ("Form") as a substitute for the narrative and "Summary of Plan Updates" that were used in the previous years. A copy of the questions can also be seen here: (FY 23-24 EWSR Form Questions.pdf). The Office of the Mayor and Personnel Department requests that all City departments complete and submit this form no later than FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 2023 at 5:00 P.M.*

The Personnel Department is committed to working with departments to assist and support them in submitting the Form in a timely manner; therefore, a Succession Plan Liaison Analyst will be assigned to further assist with the submission of this Form. You may find your assigned analyst, your previous year's responses and other resources on the Workforce Planning Website, which is available to all City departments. (Direct Link: <https://sites.google.com/view/cityofla-workforce-planning/home>). Please contact your assigned Analyst should you have any questions or concerns.

*PLEASE NOTE: Google Forms automatically saves your progress for 30 days when you're signed in to your Google account. We strongly recommend signing in to your Google account when completing this form to ensure that Google saves your responses as you work.

Please select the department that you are submitting this form on behalf of.
